REFORM OF LORDS NOT IMMEDIATE

Present Session of British Parliament to Confine Its Attention Chiefly to Ordinary Business

ABYSSINIAN DAM NOT DIFFICULTY

Foreign Secretary Accepts Statement of Abyssinian Representative—No Contract Signed

LONDON, Nov. 8.—Those who had hoped for a hearing on the question of the "flapper vote" at the present session of parliament, suffered a disappointment today when the government decided that the House of Lords will not be introduced until after Christmas.

Parliament resembled quietly for a sitting which will last until Christmas, and which will be occupied with measures almost entirely of local interest, such as unemployment insurance, Defence of the Realm Act and similar subjects.

The House adopted a government resolution giving government business precedence to the remainder of the session by a vote of 269 to 128, thus excluding any extraneous legislation, but the Prime Minister promised to find the time for the debates requested by the opposition leaders on disarmament, the foreign policy, including Tangiers and Great Britain's failure to ratify the Washington eight-hour convention.

ABYSSINIAN DAM

The matter of Abyssinian Blue Nile dam came up for a few minutes. Sir Austen Chamberlain, Foreign Secretary, was able to place the situation in a better perspective. He virtually accepted the recent statement made by Dr. Warneke Martin, Abyssinian representative in the negotiations with the American company reported to have entered into an agreement for the construction of the dam.

Some of the members apparently were under the impression that the reported granting of a concession to dam the Blue Nile at Lake Tana to an American company involved a political issue between Great Britain and the United States.

WHITE RUSSIANS RIOT IN HARBIN

LONDON, Nov. 8.—A Tokyo dispatch to the Daily Mail says that as a counterblast to the Soviet anniversary, 10,000 White Russians paraded in Harbin today. They hoisted the Soviet flag and tore the red flag from Soviet houses and shops, trampling it under foot. They also scattered handbills urging the Chinese to expel the Jews as breeders of trouble. There were many clashes between the Whites and the Reds and both also came into conflict with the police.

RAINBOW CHASE SEEN AS PERIL

Chairman of Ward Two Conservatives Warns the Members of Danger of Following Idle Leads

SAYS MR. BOWSER IS OUT OF FIELD

Making a strong appeal for determined action on the part of the Conservatives of this city in preparation for the coming provincial election, Captain M. D. Harbord, chairman of Ward Two association, recalled last evening, in addressing the executive, the words that had been told him by Mr. W. J. Bowser, K.C., when he waited upon him and discussed the situation.

"Mr. Bowser, as far as I can remember his words, said, 'I am going South for the benefit of my health and I want to be left in peace in my retirement,'" said Captain Harbord. "I think this clears the air," said the speaker. "We can get along with other necessary work, and leave Mr. Bowser in his retirement."

SECOND ARREST STIRS RUMANIA

LIEUTENANT TEODORU AND WIFE SAID TO BE IN CAROLIST PLOT

Opposition Paper Charges That Premier Wishes to Be Another Primo de Rivera

BUCHAREST, Nov. 8.—Rumania was just recovering from the shock of the alleged Maniulescu plot to restore former Crown Prince Carol to the throne when the country was again plunged into a state of agitation and uncertainty, culminating in the re-establishment of censorship today, by the arrest at a border town of a lieutenant and his wife, who are said to have been in communication with Prince Carol.

One Opposition paper, Adeverul, took advantage of its last edition before the censorship became effective to charge that Premier Bratianu was preparing to establish a dictatorship along the lines of that of General de Rivera in Spain. The paper calls for a denial from the Government if its information is not correct, declaring that if no such denial is forthcoming the Opposition and all democratic interests should prepare for a struggle against usurpation of the constitution.

THE PAS, MAN., Nov. 8.—Searchers have discovered, in the ruins of a building burned this morning, the charred remains of a man believed to be a Russian, known as Paul, who had been working on the Hudson Bay Railway and arrived here by train yesterday. He was about sixty-five years old.

RESULT OF VOTE IN U.S. UNEVENTFUL

No Tendency Away From Republican Party Indicated—Al Smith Defeats New York Amendment

SAN FRANCISCO RE-ELECTS ROLPH

Contest for Governorship of Kentucky Not Definitely Decided But Republican Candidate Leads

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 8.—Complete unofficial returns of San Francisco's city and county election indicated early today that Mayor James Rolph, Jr., had defeated James E. Power in the mayoralty race by about 30,000 votes, and that Sheriff Tom Finn had been defeated for re-election by W. Fitzgerald by about 26,000. The total vote was reported as 163,187.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 8.—Another victory at the polls for Governor Alfred E. Smith, of New York, and an apparent decisive defeat for the Anti-Saloon League in Ohio, were features of yesterday's off year elections in a dozen states.

These results, together with the gubernatorial race in Kentucky and mayoralty contests in Philadelphia, Detroit and San Francisco, held the chief interest from a national point of view in the country-wide voting, which otherwise was concerned mostly with local questions.

With about half of the state returned tabulated the voters had piled up a majority of more than 300,000 against the proposed Constitutional Amendment in New York providing for a four-year term for Governor, commencing at the next Presidential election.

Governor Smith opposed the amendment on the stump, but in a statement issued last night declared that while both sides had regarded the change as a matter of local interest, the defeat "must be regarded as a protest on the part of an overwhelming majority of the electorate against the extension of the term of office in a year when presidential candidates are running."

OPPOSED BY MOTORISTS

With one-half of the state's precincts heard from, a majority of 157,000 stood against the Motorists' bill in Ohio. This measure, supported by the State Anti-Saloon League and submitted to referendum, would restore to mayors and justices of the peace authority to collect fees in criminal cases, including prohibition law violations.

It was opposed by automobile clubs and the League of Women Voters. Estimated that J. C. W. Beckham, Democrat, was trailing Flen D. Sampson, Republican, for Governor of Kentucky by a majority of 4,000 votes on the basis of returns from 3,441 precincts. The result was still in doubt.

The only other Governor elected yesterday was in Mississippi, which went through the formality of electing Theo. G. Bilbo, a former governor and a Democrat.

New state assembly and Journalists resulted in victory for Harry A. Mackey, Republican, over J. Hampton Moore, Independent, by a large plurality.

REPUBLICANS HOLD SEATS

Three representatives of the National House of Representatives were chosen to fill vacancies. James M. Beck, former Solicitor-General of the United States, and a Republican, with Varghese, was elected from the first Pennsylvania district, and Clarence E. Hancock, Republican, was chosen to fill an unexpired term from the 35th New York district. Charles G. Taggart, Jr., Republican, won out in the second Ohio district. All three of the seats had been held by Republicans.

The following countries signed: Germany, Austria, Belgium, Great Britain, Northern Ireland, Bulgaria, Denmark, Egypt, Finland, France, Hungary, Italy, Japan, Holland, Rumania, Yugoslavia, Siam, Switzerland and Czechoslovakia.

NEW ENGLAND GETS TO WORK

COMMUNICATIONS WITH OUTSIDE WORLD GRADUALLY RESTORED

When Flooded Areas Are Reached Men Are Forced Rebuilding Roads and Bridges

BOSTON, Nov. 8.—New England's flood-stricken communities today look up the work of rebuilding the ruined houses and industries as the swollen streams fell back into their normal channels, and communications were gradually restored to the outside world.

Tonight there were few places which relief agencies had not reached. As outside roads ended the last of the towns in Northern Vermont, cut off since last Thursday by the flood, they found men armed with picks and shovels digging themselves out of the debris of wrecked houses and piles of mud, erecting temporary bridges and laying out roadways over which much needed supplies must be brought.

Throughout Vermont, New Hampshire, Massachusetts and Connecticut, the streams continue to recede and there appeared no further danger from the waters. The Connecticut was dropping all along its length and the residents of towns and cities along its lower stretches breathed freely once more. Similar reports came from along the Merrimack in New Hampshire and Massachusetts.

LADNER BRIDGE

VANCOUVER, Nov. 8.—Arguments for and against the proposed Ladner bridge were given by Vancouver citizens today before the Dominion Government commission of engineers sitting at the Fraser River. The hearing will be resumed tomorrow in New Westminster.

Danger of delay was admitted by W. S. Greer, shipping agent, testified to no navigation difficulties from the present bridge. If conditions were the same on the Fraser River as at Second Narrows, Burrard Inlet, he would be opposed to the new structure. Captain T. H. Worsnop, former port warden, said the Ladner bridge would be a disaster, claiming costly delays at New Westminster bridge. A second structure would double the expense of the first. He also maintained that in the spring, when freshets are heavy, a boat could not risk passing the bridge with any degree of safety except against the current.

PREMIERS MAY NEED MORE TIME

Conclusion of Ottawa Conference May Be Delayed Until Thursday—Federal Subsidies Discussed

MARITIMES TELL OF REQUIREMENTS

Judgment Given in Their Favor by Duncan Commission Should Be Carried Into Effect, They Say

OTTAWA, Nov. 8.—Federal subsidies to the nine provinces and the Duncan report on Maritime claims were again under review at today's deliberations of the Provincial Premiers' conference. A possibility exists that consideration of these questions may delay the conclusion of the conference until Thursday.

New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, Saskatchewan and Nova Scotia held the floor throughout the day. For New Brunswick, Premier J. B. M. Baxter declared that questions before the conference should not be discussed "in the light of Grit or Tory." All the recommendations made by the Duncan commission should be carried into effect by Federal legislation.

WESTERN LANDS

"The Maritimes," stated Premier Baxter, "stand as individuals who have no judgment regarding their favor." Dr. Baxter made reference to the Western lands. He did not contend that the Maritimes had any claim upon them; but he asked that the West show a "brotherly consideration" for those who had shared the load so that those lands could be made valuable by railroads and other developments. Despite what had been said to the contrary, the Maritime Provinces still believed in Confederation.

For Saskatchewan, Premier J. G. Gardiner opposed the idea that the West was indebted to any part of the Dominion for its lands. The Western Provinces, though, "owed a debt to the Eastern Provinces of having sent their sons and daughters to the West for settlement there."

With the opening of the Hudson Bay Railway, a trade might be established between the Maritimes and the West which would add to the prosperity of both.

MARKETS LACKING

Speaking after the luncheon recess, Premier J. B. M. Baxter stated that the Fathers of Confederation had foreseen a more prosperous Maritime under Confederation. He stated that the Maritimes themselves had believed that this would be so. It was not in a large measure the fault of Confederation that these visions had not been realized. The channels of trade visioned by the Fathers of Confederation had rather been visioned by desire than knowledge.

He said that the Maritimes had not been able to realize the height of the vision of the Fathers of Confederation. In the two big central provinces there had been a massing of wealth and activity which precluded competition by the smaller provinces.

VANCOUVER COUNCIL HAS CONFLICT OVER CONTRACT AWARDS

Commission Appointed to Review Working of Changes Made in India's Government

VANCOUVER, Nov. 8.—Awarding of the contract for the additional units to the General Hospital caused much verbal warfare at the City Council meeting this afternoon. During the battle Alderman John Beattie requested that he be relieved of the chairmanship of the hospital committee since the advice of that body was disregarded.

The question of dividing contracts for the cause of the debate. The committee recommended that contracts for both buildings, a maternity hospital and a private ward unit, be let to Hodgson, King & Marble for $576,840, which represented $318,800 and $257,950.

ROY OLMSTED NOW IN COUNTY JAIL

SEATTLE, Nov. 8.—Apparently unable to raise $10,000 bail, Roy Olmsted, one-time "rum king" of the Pacific Northwest, tonight was lodged in the King County jail on a bench warrant when he disappeared a month ago.

Olmsted threw a surprise into the Government ranks by appearing in Federal Court today where two conspiracy cases, in which he is a principal defendant, were called for trial.

The alleged liquor conspirator disappeared at the opening of the so-called second Olmsted trial. Subsequently he was variously reported to have fled to Mexico, Canada and Chicago. When asked where he had been, Olmsted smiled.

"I've been here, there and everywhere. I was gone and now I'm back."

TO REPORT ON BRITISH INDIA

PREMIER BALDWIN MAKES ANNOUNCEMENT IN HOUSE OF COMMONS

Commission Appointed to Review Working of Changes Made in India's Government

LONDON, Nov. 8.—The House of Commons was crowded today when Premier Baldwin, amid Conservative cheers, entered the House and announced the composition of the statutory commission to inquire into the working of reforms in India as follows:

Sir John Simon, M.P., former Secretary of State for Home Affairs, chairman; Lord Burnham, proprietor of The Daily Telegraph, president of the Empire Press Union; Lord Strathcona, son of the late Baroness Strathcona and Mount Royal; Edward Cadogan, M.P.; Stephen Walsh, M.P.; Col. Lane Fox, M.P., and Major C. E. Attilie, M.P.

Premier Baldwin stated the names of the commissioners would be submitted to both Houses of Parliament in a resolution. The Government was of the opinion, the Premier said, that the taking of evidence would be greatly facilitated if the commission invited the Central Indian Legislature to appoint a joint select committee to submit its views in writing to the commission. This committee might remain in being for any subsequent consultation desired by the commission, he suggested and a similar procedure may be adopted with provincial legislatures.

While the Washington government and the American people desire to remain outside political entanglement abroad, it was said they also have rights of free commerce as neutrals which they might not be inclined to waive.

Premiers Unite to Give Unanimous Expression To Hopes for Dominion

Canadian Club at Ottawa Addressed by Premier of Canada and by Premiers of All Provinces or Their Representatives—Broadly Optimistic View Taken of Future

Hon. L. A. Taschereau Says Quebec Knows Value of British Empire

OTTAWA, Nov. 8.—The significance of the year 1927 in the history of Canada; the wisdom and foresight of the Fathers of Confederation; a parallel between the provincial delegations prior and leading up to the union of the various provinces and the present conference now taking place on Parliament Hill and a broadly optimistic outlook for the future of this country, were the elements which were compounded in the addresses of the Prime Minister and the Premiers of the provinces, delivered this evening at a banquet tendered them by the Canadian Club here.

Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King was present with the Premiers of Quebec, Ontario, Manitoba, Saskatchewan, British Columbia and Prince Edward Island while New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Alberta were represented by members of the provincial cabinets. All of them spoke.

The year 1927, said the Prime Minister, would go down in history and the conference of Ministers was one of the memorable events of a noble year. He doubted if many appreciated how Canada had come to be so great a country in such a short space of time. The Prime Minister paid a graceful tribute to Sir Robert Borden and Sir George Foster, both of whom were present, and in emphasizing his position, Canada's achievements recalled that these two statesmen both remembered the coming into being of the Dominion.

Premier King outlined the events previous to the union of 1867, pointing out the influence of the Maritime Provinces in directing the attention of the statesmen of that day to the possibilities of federal union.

The Prime Minister reviewed the political relationship of the provinces uniting only in the sentiment of a common allegiance and the exercise of British institutions. The sentiment had been a great factor in bringing about Confederation, and it was still the principal factor in preserving the British constitution. It was the honor of freedom and liberty; it secured liberty and self-government to those who lived under it.

PAIRIE PREMIERS

Hon. J. G. Gardiner, Premier of Saskatchewan, declared that the present year was a good one where in to urge the unity of Canada. The solemn ceremonies had inspired the minds of the young of the country with those great achievements of the past.

He praised British institutions as the freest in the world, and also spoke of Saskatchewan's debt to the early French pioneers.

Hon. W. H. Hoadley, speaking in the absence of Premier Brundage, of Alberta, quoted figures to show Alberta's progress since the province was created.

One of the great problems of the British Empire was the distribution of population within the Empire. In the heart of the Empire was a surplus population with the atmosphere and background of the world, which meant not only enthusiasm as regards the traditions of the British Empire, but a thorough knowledge of it, bred in the bone. These people did not have to be told about it; they absorbed it ever since they were able to think for themselves and to the degree that this country was able to give peace people, the easier it would be to preserve these great traditions.

Premier John Bracken, of Manitoba, declared the Canadian Government could facilitate Canadian unity by making the administration of the natural resources a matter for the business of the people of the provinces concerned rather than having it done by someone 1,000 miles away.

BRITISH COLUMBIA

Premier J. D. MacLean, British Columbia, declared that on the Pacific slope the people had had the same aims and aspirations as those in Eastern Canada. British Columbians were endeavoring to build up a province which in years to come would be no discredit to the Dominion.

LABORITES OPPOSE LUNCHEON TO MAYOR

LONDON, Nov. 8.—Labor members of the Liverpool City Council today revolted against the traditional custom of extending a civic luncheon to the retiring and incoming Lord Mayor.

At the last meeting of the council, one of the Labor members moved that the function be abandoned in view of the extreme poverty prevalent in the city. As a sequel to the defeat of the resolution nineteen Labor members of the council declined to attend the function.

Sir Archibald Salvidge described the resolution as a humbug. "When the Labor met attend the trades union congress," he said, "they stay at the most palatial hotels and drink more champagne in a day than I drink in five years."

VATICAN LEGATE EXPECTED SOON

Hearty Welcome Assured Apostolic Delegate on His Arrival in City on Monday

PLANS MADE FOR CEREMONY HERE

Roman Catholic circles are eagerly awaiting the coming next week of the newly appointed Apostolic Delegate, who visits the Diocese of Victoria as the personal representative of the Vatican.

His Excellency the Most Reverend Andrea Cassulo, successor of the Most Rev. Peter Ci Maria, who returned to Rome a few months ago after eight years of service, has been visiting the dioceses of the Dominion westward from Ottawa, and will arrive on Monday next by the afternoon boat from Vancouver. As Apostolic Delegate, he will receive papal honors and will bring to the faithful the special dispensation of the papal blessing.

Welcomed at the boat with state ceremony by clergy and laity from all parts of the Island, His Excellency will be escorted direct to the Bishop's Palace on View Street, at which, after a reception, Bishop O'Donnell will entertain the clergy of the diocese at dinner, in order to give opportunity for meeting the distinguished visitor.

The principal event of the four days' stay will be the service of Benediction on Monday evening at 8 o'clock in St. Andrew's Cathedral, following the presentation of addresses of welcome from clergy and laity. The Apostolic Delegate will proceed in his ecclesiastical vestments from the Palace to the Cathedral, under a special guard of Knights of Columbus of the fourth degree, while the streets will be lined by members of the Holy Name Society, the Knights of Columbus and the Young Men's Institute, the three men's organizations of the parish.

Met at the door by Bishop O'Donnell, the visiting prelate will be escorted to the official throne in the sanctuary, during which the Cathedral choir will sing special motets: "Tu es Petrus" (Thou Art Peter) and "Ego Sedes in Petro" (I hold the Priesthood). His Excellency, having been enthroned in the chair of his office, Bishop O'Donnell will read an address of welcome from the clergy and a leading layman will convey the greetings of the laity. After the visitor's reply will follow the service of Benediction, with the Bishop as celebrant, at the close of which the worshippers will receive the papal blessing.

Tuesday will be occupied with visits to St. Ann's Academy, St. Joseph's Hospital and St. Louis College, conducted by the Christian Brothers. On Wednesday the visitor will be given an opportunity of seeing something of Victoria and its environs.

Archbishop Cassulo belongs to the diplomatic service of the Vatican, and is a member of the Roman Catholic Church, has relations with practically every nation and representatives at their courts. The various Apostolic Delegations gain in this way a great variety of experience. The visiting prelate entered the diplomatic service at the age of seventeen. His last post was in Egypt and Syria.

Archbishop Cassulo Coming

The Apostolic Delegate to Canada, making his first visit to the West, will arrive here next Monday.

SILENCE BEGINS WITH TIME GUN

Neither Bells Nor Sirens Will Be Used to Announce Anniversary of Armistice

The Armistice Period Committee makes the special request that neither bells be rung, nor sirens blown this year in connection with the celebration of Armistice on November 11. In past years there has been a wild medley of sounds which did anything but create the right atmosphere. This year the two minutes' silence will be marked by the firing of the time gun at 11:00 o'clock, and the sounding of the "Carry On." It is hoped that everyone will take notice of this request on the part of the Armistice Period Committee, which is making a special effort to have the silence reverently observed.

There will be a short service at the Cenotaph at 11:00 o'clock, November 11, when various Government representatives, organizations, etc., will place wreaths at the memorial. A detailed programme will be published later.

ACCUSED ENTERS PLEA OF GUILTY

Douglas Robinson Remanded Until Today for Sentence—John Morrison Goes to Jail for Two Months

Douglas Robinson, a youth of twenty-three years, was arraigned in the City Police Court yesterday before Magistrate George Jay to face a charge of stealing on November 5 the sum of $10 and a pocketbook, the property of Mr. Thomas Nute, 534 Michigan Street. He was arrested by Detectives Marcus Phipps and William Stark.

The accused elected summary trial, and entered a plea of guilty to the charge. The circumstances of the case were outlined to the court by Detective Phipps, who stated that Robinson had admitted the theft of a wallet from the coat belonging to Mr. Nute, a pressman.

Mr. J. S. Brandon, counsel for Robinson, urged that leniency be exercised by the court in disposing of the case. He gave the assurance that restitution of the stolen money would be made. He asked His Honor to release the accused on suspended sentence.

Magistrate Jay remanded the case until this morning for consideration. John Morrison was sentenced to serve two months in jail with hard labor on a charge of supplying Loganberry wine to an Indian, Joe Jack, contrary to the Indian Act. The accused pleaded not guilty, but did not take the witness stand in his own defence. Evidence for the Crown was given by Sergeant Thomas Healey, Constable Samuel Strange, and the Indian, Joe Jack. Vera Palmer pleaded not guilty to a charge of vagrancy. The case was remanded until this morning on the suggestion of City Prosecutor Claude L. Harrison, who intimated that the accused was wanted by the immigration authorities here. The woman was arrested by Detectives Jack Rogers and Walter Gallowell.

DOUGLAS DAY TO BE MARKED

NATIVE SONS OF B.C. ARRANGE FOR EXERCISES COMMEMORATING EVENT

Sprigs of Fir to Be Distributed on Saturday, Nov. 19, by Various Posts in Province

Preparations will be undertaken at once in different posts of the Native Sons of British Columbia for the celebration of Douglas Day, November 19, the birthday of the Crown Colony of British Columbia. It was announced last night by Mr. W. H. Kinsman, of Victoria, grand factor of the order.

On November 19, 1858, James Douglas took oath of office as Governor of the Colony of British Columbia at Port Langley. He had previously been appointed Governor of the separate Colony of Vancouver Island, following the retirement in 1851 of Governor Blanshard, the first incumbent. It was at Langley, however, that he was sworn in as chief executive of the newly-formed colony of British Columbia, and coincident with the proclamation announcing the establishment of the colonial government was read the Act of Revocation by which the territory was taken from the control of the fur company, and placed under the jurisdiction of the Crown.

Sprigs of fir, the emblem of the day, will be distributed by Native Sons of British Columbia as part of the exercises of commemoration.

Actresses of Paris have taken to rose-scented lipstick.

KIWANIANS PAY HONOR TO DEAD

Clubmen Stand in Silence for One Minute at Luncheon Session—Minstrel Show Plans

Victoria Kiwanians, at their luncheon yesterday in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium, stood in silence for one minute, paying respect to the memory of the men who made the supreme sacrifice during the Great War.

The need for magazines and books for lighthouse keepers was outlined in a letter from Mrs. Alice Thomson, president of the club, who was invited to assist in this regard by leaving donations of publications at the office of the Victoria Wood and Coal Company, 1104 Broad Street.

Reports on the forthcoming Kiwanis Minstrel show at the Royal Victoria Theatre were given by Vice-president C. Elwood Watkins and Secretary Carleton W. Stocker. The rehearsals have proven a big success and a splendid entertainment.

RESURVEY OF CITY ON TAPIS

COUNCIL WILL HOLD PRIVATE SESSION NEXT MONDAY TO STUDY SITUATION

Proper Titles to Property Difficult to Secure Because of Inaccuracies in Property Lines

A petition from surveyors of this city asking that a resurvey of the city be made, owing to the many errors in property lines and removal of monuments, was received at last night's meeting of the city council.

Alderman Brown recommended that a private session of the council be held, with the surveyors present, so that a study of the situation could be made. It was a serious matter, and owing to the great expenditure that might be required, would probably have to be sent on to the 1928 council with a recommendation from this year's council.

This proposed survey, he believed, would come under the Special Surveys Act, and for this reason he recommended that the petition be sent to the city engineer and city collector for report.

Alderman H. C. Holmes pointed out the necessity of such a survey. It was hard to get proper title to property, he said, as surveyors did not care to place their signatures on such titles when there were so many inaccuracies in the present survey.

It was finally decided to hold a private meeting of the council with the surveyors at 7 o'clock next Monday evening.

THE FAILURE

He was a failure, so his fellows said for he had gained scant store of worldly goods and in adversity he bowed his head, rebelling never at life's cruel moods. He was a failure? Strange, then, how the poor in dire distress sought him to aid, and how the needy waited at his door and brought their problems to him, unafraid. He failed to gain the world's esteem, to glean its rich rewards of fame and gold; but won, instead, to harbor of his dream, held wealth and love and simple joys untold. He was a failure, yet some men who bear the outward tokens of unmarred success would gladly give their splendors up to share the failure's lot of peace and happiness.

The Jewish Board of Guardians of England recently announced that 95 per cent of the money lent to set poor people up in business has been repaid.

Superannuation Will Bring About Economy

Alderman William Marchant, Chairman of Committee, Outlines Scheme Brought in for Purpose of Lessening Burden on Taxpayer and Meeting Demands of Employees

"The principle underlying all superannuation proposals is that when a person has served others for a considerable period and has reached a stage in life where he is unable to give the full measure of service required, then a provision or retiring allowance shall be made which shall enable him to live in comparative comfort for the remainder of his life."

Alderman William Marchant, chairman of the superannuation committee, stated at last night's meeting of the City Council in moving the first reading of the Superannuation By-Law.

"This principle is often attacked for various reasons. Yet it is indisputable that nearly all civilized governments, municipalities, and large corporations have accepted the principle and carried it into practice," he went on to say.

"It is thrust upon the municipalities of British Columbia by an amendment made last year to the Provincial Superannuation Act of 1921.

"Whether, therefore, the city of Victoria is in favor of the adoption of the principle of superannuation or not, this amendment leaves no option. There are, however, two methods by which superannuation for the employees of the city can be effected. The first, through the finance department of the Provincial Government, and the second, through the treasury department of the City Council.

"The first method would cost the city next year about $29,000, and provided no increases be made to the staff or salaries paid, would probably remain about that figure for some years to come.

"The second plan is to operate by-law under the Municipal Act, Section 54, Subsection 25a, which was passed in 1925, and the powers necessary for that purpose. By this method, the immediate payment for next year and for some years to come, would probably be less than $10,000 per annum and this again would be lessened by per contra credits which should be considered.

DIFFERENCE EXPLAINED

"The difference between the two systems as proposed lies in the fact that under the second the City Council would each year vote only a sufficient appropriation to pay the actual requirements for superannuation during the year, while the Government pension plan would require, in addition, a very large amount paid for a reserve fund, in order to provide for remote contingencies. This would probably cost about $19,000 per annum more.

"It may be frankly admitted that many citizens object to the superannuation scheme altogether and view with disfavor those who advocate it. Equally, there are some of the employees who view with disfavor the control of superannuation by the officials of the city, so that between the two sets of objectors, the City Council is in the dilemma of the mariners of olden time who sailed in the treacherous seas between the rock Scylla on the one hand and the whirlpool Charybdis on the other. Whatever course is taken is beset with snares and each member of the Council must steer his own craft as best he can. It should be remembered, however, that the retirement of old servants of the Council does not always mean increased cost. Usually, the salary of a department is the first to retire, because of its longer service, and his place might be filled by a younger man, who would not be entitled to so large a salary. It may even be found that in some departments less help may be required and a saving effected thereby. This is true in the street-sweeping arrangements of the city, because of the introduction of labor-saving machinery. It should also be noted that the employees themselves provide a large portion of the funds required to superannuate, through deductions from their salaries.

SAVING ASSURED

"If the Council's control is maintained, it is precisely certain that with the savings that can be effected, there would be little, if any, added to the mill rate for the next ten years.

"The authority of the council to dismiss for any cause whatever is unimpaired, so that proper control through all the departments of civic employment.

"Many citizens are fearing that there will be a great demand for superannuation on the part of the employees of the city, and consequently increased taxation, but a hurried investigation shows that the opposite is the case. Very few are asking for it at present or in the immediate future, but indubitably there are those who by reason of advancing years will be glad to lay aside the heavier burdens of life and will seek a well-earned rest in retirement from active labors.

"It will be necessary to make suitable arrangements for carrying into effect the provisions of this by-law, which will be submitted later. More important still are the necessary provisions for new appointments to the service that may be made in the future. The entrance into the service of the corporation must be carefully guarded and rules and regulations made for the appointment, health, experience, general adaptability, mental and physical capacity must be considered so that the civil lists of the corporation shall not be unduly burdened.

"The subject matter of the by-law has been considered, debated, sifted and investigated from many viewpoints and angles, but the committee feels that the by-law does contain fair and reasonable proposals, alike for the council and the employees.

ILLUSTRATES POINT

Alderman Marchant, in illustrating how superannuation would help to save the city money, cited the case of the street cleaning department. This year the appropriation for this work amounted to $24,826.

The cost of operating an Elgin sweeper would be $15,262, making a saving of $11,444. Even including the initial cost of the machine, which is $9,500, there would be a saving of some $2,000.

Alderman Litchfield, in seconding the motion that the by-law be introduced, said that the committee worked hard to find a scheme that would suit both the ratepayers and the employees, and he was glad to see that so gratifying a result had been obtained.

COOK'S COXEY ARMY DEFERS ITS START

NEWPORT, Wales, Nov. 8.—The little army of unemployed marshaled by A. J. Cook, secretary of the British Federation of Miners, slept in Newport tonight hopeful of the morrow.

The gathering did not get started toward London today as planned, due to a cold snap which delayed marchers from scattered mining districts who were assembling here. Tomorrow, however, the leaders hope to start the 200-mile trek for the purpose of impressing Parliament with the needs of the unemployed.

Robert, as a boy, conducted what was the smallest newspaper in the world and early showed signs of precocious knowledge of minerals and chemistry, following the footsteps of his well-known father. Robert was taken suddenly ill on January 18, and after two major operations, taken to Southern California to recuperate. Mr. Keffer writes to an old friend here and says that Robert is not yet "out of the woods" and will be unable to resume his duties with the Anaconda Copper Company for a long time—if at all. The climate of Montana is not suited to his condition. Frederick Keffer is now operating a large mine forty miles in the wilds from Libby, Montana, but is returning to his home in Spokane, Wash., for Christmas, where Mr. Robert Keffer and her small son are now making their home with him.

KNIGHTS TELL LURE OF CITY

Advertising Is Stressed in Speeches at Weekly Meeting of Knights of Round Table

APPEAL OF NORTH MADE BY BANKER

The subject of immigration and emigration, as far as the city and district is concerned, as well as from the standpoint of the national life of Canada, was discussed at the weekly dinner of the Knights of Round Table last evening. The subject was introduced by Mr. S. Drake, who placed the matter very clearly before the members present by the novel and effective manner in which he handled it. The members were requested to state their reasons why they had come to Victoria, and as a result of the answers Mr. Drake pointed out clearly that the great object to be kept in view as far as the subject was concerned, was that of advertising.

Not satisfied with the consideration of this subject alone, the organization heard an address from Mr. John Newmarsh on the subject of "The Great Northland," residence in which as manager of the Bank of Commerce at White Horse, has endeavored that country to the speaker.

Mr. Bowden recently purchased a lot on Woolston Street for $135, and considering that he had made a rash purchase in locating so close to the city, wrote to the council for his money back. The council decided to refund the $135 with no comment save that in future they wished their property to stay sold.

The report of Municipal Engineer H. P. Bourne showed that a balance of $6,000 of the 1927 appropriation for public works remained unexpended. He drew attention to the fact that a municipal-owned lot bordering on Grafton Street, and Lyle Street, could be added to Grafton Street producing a roadway sixty feet wide. The suggestion was adopted unanimously by the council.

A letter was read from residents of Granville Avenue, requesting that a street light be placed on that location to be placed back on its former spot. Following a short discussion, councillors were of the opinion that the light in present position was doing far more good than when located on Granville Avenue.

Chief Constable John Acreman's report showed that three police court cases during October had netted only $25. The sum of $65 had been collected for trades licenses and $81 for poll money. Sixty-seven complaints had been received and attended to during the month with no fire calls received.

YUKON AND NORTHERN B.C.

Mr. Newmarsh gave valuable information with respect to the Yukon and the adjoining territory of British Columbia which lay along the side that territory. It was a country that had endless attractions for all who ever went to it. The matter of attracting tourists there as well as elsewhere was of the greatest importance. It was estimated that $200,000,000 was spent by residents of the United States in Canada last year. If people outside knew of the sunshine that had been referred to so attractively by Mr. P. Napier Denison at a meeting held recently, he was sure that there would be far more visit this city and environs.

The cry used to be "Go West." It was now "Go North." He went into the gold production of the territory, and said that the Yukon was not only a land of gold. "It is in reality a land of sunshine and flowers in the Summer time." The writings of Robert W. Service had done

Council Learns Mr. John Dean May Seek Office

Mr. John Dean, well known in this city because of the interest he has taken in civic affairs, will probably be a candidate for alderman at the coming election. Intimation of this was received at last night's meeting of the City Council. In a letter asking for information from one of the departments he pointed out that this information was needed by him because, except for unforeseen circumstances, he would be a candidate at the next election. This will increase the known list of aldermanic candidates for the five seats to eight, with Alderman Holmes and Alderman Mars still silent as to their intentions.

great things in attracting attention to that country. Tourists were flocking in as a result of his poems. There were scenic attractions that could not be surpassed. Many went there to see the animals in their natural haunts. They did not go necessarily to kill, but rather to take reels to show their friends. Both of the introducers of the subjects were thanked by members.

ESQUIMALT NOT RURAL ENOUGH

Council Returns Purchase Price of Lot to Man Who Wants to Get Away From City

That Esquimalt was "not far enough out," was the plea of Mr. J. Bowden to the Esquimalt council last evening, in asking for a refund of money paid the municipality for a lot. Mr. Bowden recently purchased a lot on Woolston Street for $135, and considering that he had made a rash purchase in locating so close to the city, wrote to the council for his money back. The council decided to refund the $135 with no comment save that in future they wished their property to stay sold.

Concert Is Help to W.M.S. Finances

Several artists took part in the programme given last evening at the Metropolitan Church under the auspices and in aid of the Women's Missionary Society. Mr. Edward Parsons, organist, who opened the programme with delightful interpretations of Bach's Prelude and Fugue in E Minor, "Prelude in E Minor," also played the accompaniments for the various soloists, duettists, and other singers during the evening. The soloists were Misses Hargreaves and Mrs. Chris Miller, whose artistic playing of "In Days of Knighthood" merits their encouragement to continue this class of ensemble work, and the solos by Mrs. W. H. Wilson, Miss Merle North and Miss MacLean, the first two sopranos, the last a contralto, all of whom showed excellent training and natural talent. Messrs. W. C. and Beverley Pye, tenor and baritone of the First United Church choir, gave a carefully phrased and well-balanced duet, "Watchman, What of the Night?" which was well received. The only soloist on the programme was Mrs. H. Hollins, who furnished a touch of appreciated humor in her reading entitled "Unexpected Guests."

Prisoners Brought

VANCOUVER, Nov. 8.—Five prisoners sentenced at Prince Rupert, Hazelton and Smithers for various offences, were brought to Vancouver for confinement in Okanagan prison farm by Sergeant McNeill and Mrs. McNeill, of Prince Rupert, today.

The prisoners were Peter Dick, sentenced for four months for causing a disturbance; Alex McKay, sentenced to three months for giving false evidence; and a woman named Ah Toy, being in possession of opium, six months and $200 fine, with an additional two months in option of the fine.

Public Work—Building of wooden sidewalks on Wilson Street, William Street and Mary Street were authorized by the City Council last night in adopting the public works committee report. The Victoria West Brotherhood will be advised in answer to a complaint that $4,564 has been spent in public works in Victoria West this year.

Addresses Lawyers—At the luncheon session of the Victoria Bar Association, which was held yesterday, Major G. G. Aitken, M.C., chief geographer of British Columbia, spoke on the geography of this province. His remarks, which were illustrated by maps and drawings, were greatly enjoyed. Mr. William C. Marchant, president of the association, presided.

Met Horse Breeders—Hon. E. D. Barrow, Minister of Agriculture, has returned from a meeting of the horse breeders of the province in Vancouver. The meeting discussed among other things the necessity in this province at the present time of an increase in the number of heavy horses with, at the same time, an improvement in the grade of this class of animals.

Poppy Headquarters Closed—As the major work of the Poppy campaign has been completed, the committee has vacated the quarters lately supplied by the Griffith Company in the Arcade Building at 728 Yates Street. Schools, organizations and others who still have accounts to settle are requested to communicate with the secretary, Mr. C. K. Morrison, at the offices of the Royal Financial Corporation at 723 Fort Street, telephone 1025.

The report was read by the secretary, Mr. C. K. Morrison, at the offices of the Royal Financial Corporation at 723 Fort Street, telephone 1025.

Good Grain From North—The Minister of Agriculture, Hon. E. D. Barrow, has received from the officers of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police in the Liard River district, information of the success that attended the raising of experimental plots of wheat, oats, barley and rye. In addition to these grains, the province would also raise vegetables of good quality. The long continued drought in the district had the effect of advancing the growth very rapidly. The experiments prove that the province has in the far North very extensive areas where farming may be carried on with success.

Premier's Home Coming—Word received yesterday from the Premier of the Province, Hon. J. D. MacLean, gives the information that it is expected that he will leave Ottawa on Saturday for the Coast. If this plan is adhered to, he will reach Victoria about a week from next Thursday. On Monday the Premier presented the case of the province before the Interprovincial Conference in which he pressed for the return of the railway lands and the increasing of the subsidies to British Columbia in view of the peculiar position in and the province found itself in the matter of carrying on public works.

HEALTH REPORT OF CITY GOOD

Very Few Cases of Infectious Diseases—Child Welfare Clinic Operated Satisfactorily

Victoria again experienced a good healthy month in October, according to the report submitted by Dr. A. G. Price, city health officer, to the council at last night's meeting.

During the month there were but few cases of infectious diseases reported," the report stated. There were four cases of scarlet fever, three of which were in one family. There was one case of typhoid fever, the patient having arrived in the city shortly before being taken ill. No other cases of acute infectious disease of any kind were reported, and infantile paralysis, which has been a menace in other districts, has not appeared in Victoria.

Infant mortality rate increased slightly owing to the deaths of three inviable infants during the month. There were no deaths of viable infants. The child welfare clinic, held once a week, continues to carry on satisfactorily. During the month there were 108 children examined, making a total of 742 examinations during the present year. The vital statistics show the birth rate at 18 to every 1,000 of population, and the deaths at 11.9 to every 1,000 of population.

NEW POLICY FOR ASSESSOR'S DEPT.

Recommendation to Retain Special Assessor Deferred for Benefit of Court of Revision

Retaining the services of Mr. James Fairweather, engaged as a special temporary assistant in the assessor's department, brought up a controversy at last night's meeting of the City Council. The finance committee recommended that his services be retained until the work he is now engaged upon is completed. Alderman Marchant, chairman of the Court of Revision, took exception to this action, stating that the matter should have been referred to the Court of Revision. At the same time he admitted that with all appeals considered and dismissed the court no longer existed.

Alderman Litchfield said that the court had in mind a policy that would work for the betterment of the assessor's department, and if the recommendation of the finance committee was dealt with at this meeting, would probably nullify the attitude of progress that the Court of Revision had taken.

Alderman Holmes pointed to the fact that assessment in this city was a problem that still needed to be solved, that Mr. Fairweather, in the short time he had been with the city, had done much to better conditions, and that his work should be carried through to completion. It was finally decided to lay the matter over for one week so that the members of the court could give the matter their consideration.

DEAN LECTURES ON NOTED MAN

Sir Thomas More, Author of Utopia, Subject of Address Given at Memorial Hall

The most attractive personality in an unattractive age; one who was pure in an age of hypocrisy, enlightened in an age of sophistry; kindly, courteous, not swayed by this faction or that; a man of cultivated taste; a wit, a scholar, gallant and unfathomable of spirit—thus did Dean Quintin picture Sir Thomas More in a lecture which he gave last evening at Memorial Hall for the benefit of the literature department of the Columbia Diocesan W.A. A big audience was present, and before showing the series of lantern slides,
Mr. Dean was thanked by Mrs. Colin Cummins and Mrs. Dickson, president of the W.A., for the pleasure
he had given.

The Dean told something about More's boyhood and early school days in London before describing the more powerful influences which helped to shape his character and mould his destiny, a destiny which was both tragic and magnificent in its closing days. At Oxford he had shown a predilection for Greek and theology, so that his father, who intended him to be a barrister, took alarm and removed him from the university. Although More showed marked ability in his legal studies, he continued the studies which had so attracted him at Oxford. Susceptible to the thought and learning of his time he came almost simultaneously under the influence of the conflicting sentiment of the old learning on the one hand, with its idea of church authority, and on the other of the new learning with its recognition of the place of human reason. By nature ascetic, even to the extent of practicing, for a time, monastic mortification of the flesh, he recognized the debased character of the priesthood of the time, and ultimately decided that the estate of a faithful husband was preferable to the clerical celibacy of an immoral monk.

In the personal sense the great influences in More's life had been Erasmus, the great scholar, who was probably responsible for directing More definitely away from the old learning to the new; and his happy domestic life, first through his marriage to Jane Colt, by whom he had four children, and after her death to Joanna, who proved an admirable stepmother and who helped to preserve the happy atmosphere of his household.

More's distinguished public services, in which he early attracted the notice both of the King and Wolsey, were related, reference being made to the various important embassies and missions on which he was sent at various times. Finally, owing to his demonstration of honesty as well as adroitness in the office of treasurer of the exchequer, he provoked the jealousy of Wolsey,
who made an attempt to get him out of the way by having him sent on a mission to Spain. More appealed to the King, who appointed him first Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster. Here he had responsible political functions to perform.
While an avowed Liberal and reformer, More was strongly opposed to heretics and heresies, and rather than yield to the King's wish for divorce, he resigned office. The amiable simplicity of his home life was rudely disturbed by an invitation from the King to attend the

Has Never Seen a Play

though never in a theatre in her life is now on her way to Hollywood.

coronation of Anne Boleyn, with a gift of money to buy new clothes for the occasion. More declined the invitation, a fact which the King never pardoned, and his destruction was finally accomplished through a charge of treason because he refused the oath of supremacy. Four days later he was sent to the Tower.
After a year of cruel confinement he was brought to trial, and on the perjured evidence of a witness, he was declared guilty and ordered to be executed.

A moving picture of More's gallant bearing in his last hours, with his unusual and heroic daughter Margaret at his side, formed the closing part of the Dean's address.
Henry VIII had not been satisfied with the "judicial murder" of More,
but had been mean enough to consecrate his property and settle it on his daughter Elizabeth.

Mr. Chapman operated the lantern for the slides given after the lecture.

CHILDREN'S PLAY GREATLY ENJOYED

Entertainment at Sidney Under Auspices of North Saanich Social Club is Outstanding Success

SIDNEY, Nov. 8.—The North Saanich Social Club was the scene of one of the most successful entertainments ever held under their auspices, on Monday evening, when a large and enthusiastic audience of well over 250 guests was present at the children's costume play, "The Magic Fan."

The three acts of the play were presented without the least mistake, and no evidence of promptness was apparent, the children seeming to live, and not to act, their parts. The audience were lost in the old fairy tale, and were not loath to be carried back for a brief hour into the magic land of make-believe.

The play opened in a glen in Fairland, where the Fairy Queen, Pearl, in a misty frock of pink silk net embroidered with pearls, accompanied by eight little fairies in pastel shaded frocks of crepe paper, gave a graceful song and dance before meeting with the Red Magician, who, through the aid of the Magic Fan, caused the lovely Princess Crystal, who had been denied him for a bride, to be turned into a statue. The arrival of King and Queen Pippin, with their son, Prince Garnet, and Baron Blunderbus, introduced a touch of comedy, and the story of how the Fairy Queen led the Prince to Princess Crystal, and of how he was able to break the spell and bring her back to life, brought the play to an appropriate ending.

The hearty applause given by the audience showed how much the children, in their elaborate costumes, had been appreciated. The duets by D. Carter and K. Lowe, the demonstration of the lancers,
and the solo dance by Irene Lambert, proved popular parts of the entertainment.

The list of characters was as follows: The Red Magician, Jimmy Lorenson; Fairy Queen, Dorothy
Carter; Queen Ruelle, Lillian Tuttle;
Princess Crystal, Irene Lambert;
Lady Griselda, Molly Clarke; Lady Rosine, Sylvia Gorton; Ladies in Waiting, Ginny Jones and Winfred Tapping; Queen Pippin, K.
Lowe; Princess of Persia, Nesta Carter; King Pippin, John Lawson; Prince Garnet, Annie Boshier; Baron Blunderbus, George Clarke; Count Lakadai, K. Hayward; Duke of Gogonda, T. Gorton; Lord Gru-ella, A. Holmes; Peterkin, W. Hill;
Pages, Dawn Hayward and Joan
Thomas; while the little fairies were Vera Heal, Betty Thomas, Eileen
Jeffery, Florence Nunn, Geraldine
Tuttle, Betty Clarke and Irene Tuttle.

During the intermissions the following programme was given: "Little Bluebird of My Heart," a solo phone solo by R. Beswick; recitation, "A Hibald," an amusing takeoff of an English peer, and as an encore, Dorothy Carter gave "Never So Look as I Live," which proved quite as popular. This was followed by a sketch, "Ten Little Nigger Boys," by Allan Jeffery, Sidney Beswick, Roy Tuttle, Lewis Daves, Kenneth Tuttle, Leslie Stirling, Ian Wilson, G. Smith, J. Gorton, Charlie Sainsbury and "The Twins," which proved an extremely amusing number and received well-merited applause. Recitations by Dora Beal-ie, "The Flame," by Joan Stirling, and "Fat and the Preacher," by Reta Hoare, were followed by a solo,

Taken for Deer, Man Is Killed By His Friend

COURTENAY, B.C., Nov. 8.
—Sydney Cox, a young man of Whaletown, Cortez Island, was shot and killed on Sunday afternoon in mistake for a deer. It is said that the shot was fired by William Mc-Donald, who was out hunting with him.

Cox had shot a deer shortly before the accident happened. He was struck in the stomach and died in a boat which was taking him to Campbell River Hospital.

"The Ivory Gate and Olden," by Jean Speddie, who gave as an encore,
"Little Lad o' Dreams." The solo,
"Come, Birdie, Come," by little Elizabeth Clarke, brought the programme to a close.

After the performance the Ladies'
Auxiliary served a dainty supper, the younger members assisting in serving the many guests. The hall was then cleared for dancing, which was indulged in until midnight, the music being supplied by Miss Florence Lamby and Mr. B. Boshier.

The evening's entertainment was in every way a decided success, and the comments of appreciation were heard on all sides. Great credit was due to Mrs. Thomas and the Ladies' Auxiliary, who were indefatigable in the training of the children, making costumes and arranging the entertainment.

Chic Cigarette Cases

A cigarette case that reflects a new idea in such articles is fashioned after the old-fashioned match boxes. Instead of being regulated by pressing on one side, however, the inner section has a small leather loop that protrudes through the outer section in an oblong slit.
By pulling this loop upward the top of the case rolls back and brings the cigarettes out for use. These cases are made in alligator, snakeskin and pigskin, and in some the gold rim is extended on the top and bottom edges.

Cigarette holders of genuine ivory with narrow bands of ivory and gold are also being made. They are to be seen at very formal evening affairs during the coming season.
These holders, incidentally, appear to reflect the general trend toward great elaboration and embellishment in accessories and follow closely the adoption of jeweled cigarette cases and expensive cigarette

Varied Furs Used in Smart Winter Wraps

In the latest fur novelties are grey gazelle, golden seal, grey mole, dyed kid and shaved lamb. One also that is particularly good for sports wear is an all-over mottled skin called ocelot. Natural broadtail, antelope dyed a deeper-than-natural shade;
unborn cat skin, the new Breitchwani, or more mature broadtail, nutria, rabbit and astrachan are the favorites in sports coats. Chinchilla is an old favorite that holds its own and badder is the newest among the season's furs used especially for trimming.

Next in importance to the all-fur wrap is the trimmed wrap. The new coats are almost invariably trimmed with fur. For this use fox still holds the lead. All colors are fashionable in fur, but the best designed for day time and evening wear of the natural shades. Black fox is always chic, especially on black cloth. The new golden seal is used effectively on a straight, dark seal coat for formal daytime wear.
Darker fur is used for it; high,
black, fox collar, and the golden snake is used for which flame slightly at the upper edge.
There is a distinctly marked difference between the designs of wraps for daytime and evening wear,
the one being made on long, straight, simple lines, the other with diverse treatments.

Letters to Editor

DARWIN'S FAITH

Sir,—Your correspondent, Mr. P.
J. Sinnott, St. in your issue of yesterday, takes exception to a statement contained in my letter, which you published on November 4, that "Darwin was a deeply religious man, probably none had a more profound sense of the Deity. It is only a perverse teaching that has labelled him an atheist, etc." Mr. Sinnott then quotes two extracts from letters of Darwin's with the intention, apparently, of questioning the accuracy of my statement; these same extracts, however,—and I have read them with an entirely open mind, since they are of much interest,— only incline me to "stick to my guns." The statement I made did not carry with it any explanation of my reasons for making it, my letter was already too long and did not admit of roundabout.

In the first place may I explain that my conclusions were drawn,
not from Darwin's writings entirely, nor from his correspondence, but from his correspondence with men of science, but from the very intimate story of his life as disclosed by that charming book,
"Emma Darwin—A Century of Family Letters, 1829-1882," put together by Harriet Litchfield, a copy of which is in the Government Library. I will now go still further and say that Darwin led a Christian life; he was no prig, but he was a good sound practical Christian, in all his doings and dealings, and what is more he conferred on the Christianity of today and of the future the greatest boon that any man could have done since the time of the Apostles. He has reconciled science with a sense of the immortality of the soul, which all thinking people were not only beginning to question, until the idea of evolution pulled them out of the difficulty. That was Darwin's greatest contribution to Christianity, and in fact to religion. Mr. Sinnott seems to take these terms as synonymous; I don't, but that is not of importance.

"By their fruits ye shall know them," Darwin has supplied the bridge which connects the developing mind of the day with the Christian formula, and through the agency of evolution and its outcome, the idea of evolution, Christianity may always remain the religion of the reasoning mind, always provided that we do not hedge in our conception of Christianity with fences of man-made dogma which can but blind the spiritual vision. It was the ultra-development of philosophy which outstripped the religions of ancient Greece and Rome that caused the fall of their theology;
the bridge to connect them was either broken, or never existed.
Evolution can bring the reasoning mind into touch with religion all over the world; the very idea contains the germ of adaptation and accommodation; through the agency of relativity we can more accurately gauge the past and get a fairer view of the future. Here we get the sense of the dynamic, which essentially distinguishes Christianity in character from other religions.

Presumably Mr. Sinnott has made a selection in the passages he quotes, in favor of, and, presumably, to drive home his conclusions, for he ends his letter: "If the above letters are Darwin's, I cannot conceive how the writer comes under the category of a deeply religious man."

RUSSIAN CIVIL WAR PREDICTED

LONDON, Nov. 8.—The Westminster Gazette claims to have received from Russia information on the seriousness of the struggle between the followers of Joseph Stalin, Russia's "man of steel," and the followers of Leon Trotsky, former commissar of war.
Trotsky is said to be employing exactly the same tactics against the Stalin party which he himself and Lenin employed to bring about the fall of the czarist regime and later the Kerensky government. The Trotsky party has a number of secret printing presses and has established "cells" not only in the civic and local bodies and factories, but in every regiment, for pushing its propaganda, and belief is expressed that an open fight is inevitable.

coaches, two sleepers and the dining car left the tracks. The chef was slightly scalded.

Fashion Fancies

By Marie Belmont

Ensembles and suits are the vogue this season, with long coats holding a prominent place. Here a coat of broadcloth is fur-trimmed, with the fur rounded at the hem to give the effect of the skirt showing. The wide shawl collar and the cuffs of the fur, like the band around the bottom of the coat, are of a dark fur that contrasts with the lighter material of the coat.

Chrysanthemums Made Of Felt Fashionable

Chrysanthemums and football are almost inseparable, and usually come and go together. This year, however, chrysanthemums will outshine this particular sport and last night, for replicas of them in sturdy felt are now available. All the colors in the rainbow and many new shades have been drawn on to the felt, and the result is that there is hardly a sports suit imaginable that has not a chrysanthemum to go with it.

Her veil was caught to her head with a coronet of orange blossoms, and she carried Ophelia roses. Miss Phyllis Peterbridge, as maid of honor, wore a pretty frock of orchid and pink georgette and a picture hat to match. She carried a bouquet of Ophelia roses. Miss Edith Obee, sister of the bride, and Miss Theresa Weiner, of Arlington, Wash., at bridesmaids, wore frocks of blue and mauve siltmar and hats to match their dresses. They carried bouquets of pink and white chrysanthemums. Little Marion Linkill was a charming flower girl in yellow georgette and a Dutch bonnet of gold net. Mr. Earl Pierce was best man.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, where Mrs. Obee, in a gown of sand crepe de Chine and hat to match, assisted in receiving the guests.

"So This Is Marriage"

By JUDITH WEST

THE STORY SO FAR
Judith West waits at her friend Vera's prediction that she, Judith, will be back to work within a month after her marriage to Jim Overstreet. "Think of all the time you have put in getting where you are! And remember that housewife is not paid for their services!" Vera has said. Judith, however, submits happily to her prediction. "I am sure I can do anything ever since you can always come back," she said, and referred graciously to her prediction. Just as the conversation was ending, Judith Overstreet came into the office.

CHAPTER III
Jim was standing by Mrs. Kendall's desk, talking to her, when I came out of Moore's office.

His back was turned to me, but when I called out: "Hello there, Jim Overstreet," he whirled about and in two strides was at my side. "Jim," I said, "I want you to know Martin Craig. Mr. Craig, this is Jim Overstreet, my future boss."

The two men shook hands and Craig said: "Congratulations, Mr. Overstreet. You're a lucky man."

"Thanks," said Jim, "I think so myself."

For a moment there was a little silence, the silence that too often follows the mummbling of the polite, conventional phrases of an introduction.

And in this moment of silence the two men measured each other with their eyes. A well-bred measure, to be sure, but just as truly an appraisal of the worth of the other as though they had been two cave men ready to do battle with their pine tree clubs.

I, in turn, appraised them. Were there ever two men more different! Jim—big and broad-shouldered, calm, dependable, serious; Craig—slim, elegant, polished, living on the crust of life, but with the perfect poise of the cultured, of the born rich.

In a word, one thought of mountains and pine forests when one looked at Jim; one thought of drawing-rooms when one looked at Craig.

I knew, in that moment, that Craig and Jim would never get on. And yet most people like Jim; they can't help it.

Jim has that something. Women call it charm or magnetism. But ask Jim's men friends about it and they'll say: "Jim Overstreet? Say, that boy's regular."

I always think Jim is good looking a homely sort of way. His best feature, if you can put it that way, is his smile. One of those slow smiles. You see it in the eyes first, a sort of glow as if the shades of his eyes had been lifted and a little inner light were shining through. You can feel Jim's smile. It breaks out all over him—ears and all.

For some reason he makes you think of the out-of-doors. But that may be only a fancy of mine. Or it might be because his profession—civil engineering—takes him out of doors so much. He's always brown.

No Jim would never take a prize in a male beauty contest. But he's a man to tie to. There isn't a drop of pretence in him; his darn, honest old face is so sincere that it is a veritable mirror of what's going on inside his heart and head.

That is why, just now, he wasn't overcordial to Martin Craig. Jim wouldn't break his neck pretending to like someone that he didn't. He would be outwardly polite, but he wouldn't say a lot of things he didn't mean.

Not so Craig. Having taken Jim's measure with his cynic eyes he immediately broke forth into a long dissertation on Jim's good fortune in winning such a charming girl—all that sort of bunk—and how sorry he was to lose me.

"It is a real loss to the store, for Judy—er—Miss West to leave," he went on as Jim and I were about to go. "But I'll hold her place open for her as long as I can. It will not seem right to see anybody else in her office."

"That's very kind of you, Mr. Craig," Jim answered, "but I am sure Miss West will never have to take advantage of your generosity."

Wow, Jim's voice was chilly. I was glad when we had finally closed the door and were on our way to the elevators.

It is characteristic of Jim that he didn't say a word about Craig until two weeks later when we were having dinner at a funny little Italian restaurant.

"Martin Craig likes you, doesn't he?" he said.

"Of course," I answered flippantly. "Why shouldn't he?"

I smiled broadly when I said it. It was frankly a smart Aleck remark—I had intended it should be. "If old Jim thinks he is going to develop a jealous streak," I said to myself, "it is time right now to make him see how silly it is."

"I don't like his looks."

"Listen, Jim," I said, and time I was in deep earnest. "Martin Craig has been my employer for a year. I consider him my friend. He's done a lot for me, helped me in a hundred ways. And no matter what your opinion of him might be, just remember he is my friend. Perhaps you don't like him. Very well. You have friends that I'm not particularly crazy about. Tolerance about the other's friends is one of the things to be cultivated in married folks."

It was a long speech. My indignation had made me shaky and tremulous. I took a long drink of water. The waiter came in, refreshed our dinner plates and brought us our small blacks. Jim lit a cigarette and assumed an air of calm composure.

We were to be married in two weeks. Suddenly, little fears clutched at my heart. This possessiveness of Jim's—was it a new trait or was I merely becoming aware of it?

For a long time Jim stared hard at the end of his cigarette. After a time, without looking up, he said quite simply:

"I guess you're right, Judy. I'm sorry."

Well, you know how it is with a fuss. So long as someone opposes you you can stay angry, but let him give way and acknowledge himself at fault and right away you're all soft and melting.

That is how I felt now. For the life of me I couldn't keep the tears from welling up in my eyes. That's what love does; it makes one so abnormally sensitive that the least little unpleasantness becomes magnified.

Jim looked out of proportion. He was about to cry and in half a second he had come around the table and seated himself beside me. In another second his arms were around me and I was sobbing, for no reason at all, on his rough shoulder.

"Oh, darling," he whispered. "Oh, Judy, give me—love you."

Thank heaven for bodice. All evening we had laughed over the elaborate caution of the waiter in getting married. But now, at last, Jim released me.

"Judy," he said of a sudden, "why do we have to wait two weeks to get married? Let's get married right now—tonight."

"Oh—oh, Jim," I gasped. "Oh, no—not so soon!"

"But why not, Judy?" he was pleading now. You've resigned from the store, and if we wait you know that Vera and Fred and the gang will throw a wild party at our expense. Let's slip off tonight. I know a fellow in the licence office."

"But I haven't bought my trousseau yet."

"Who cares what you wear? Lord, Judy, you'd look like a million dollars to me just in a kitchen apron. You know the honeymoon we've planned—up in the woods. All you need is your hiking suit."

His arms were about me again. I felt so safe, so secure. With my head on his shoulder I breathed deep of the fragrance of his clothes—that fragrance of pine woods and tobacco.

Why, indeed, wait longer? Jim was right. The honeymoon we had planned in his prehistoric cave up in the redwood country didn't call for fine clothes. My trousseau fund was safe in the bank. I could get my clothes afterwards, when we came home. I could choose my fall wardrobe leisurely, calmly. I would get Vera to help me—she has such marvelous taste.

And what a lark it would be to steal a march on the gang!

"All right, Jim," I said. "I'm game. Can you get the licence and the preacher?"

"Leave that to me," answered Jim.

M'KECHNIE, SHOTTON IN NEW BERTHS

Philadelphia Phillies Sign Syracuse Boss to Replace Stuffy McInnis at Helm of Team

EX-PIRATE PILOT TO LEAD CARDS

Manager, Who Won Pittsburgh Pennant in 1925, Will Succeed O'Farrell as St. Louis Head

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—National League teams will have at least three new pilots for the 1928 pennant race.

This was assured today when two shifts were announced almost simultaneously, one resulting in the selection of Bill McKechnie to succeed Bob O'Farrell as manager of the St. Louis Cardinals, and the other sending Bert Shotton to replace Stuffy McInnis at the helm of the Phillies. The Boston vacancy, created by the departure of Dave Bancroft to Brooklyn, was filled recently by the appointment of Jack Slatery, Boston College coach.

WORKED AS COACH
McKechnie was a Cardinal coach last season and takes over full managerial responsibilities with the hearty approval of the man he succeeds. O'Farrell never has been a manager, but he has been a successful one as a coach, and he is understood only at the urgent request of President Sam Breadon. The latter now is convinced, however, that "to spoil a great catcher like O'Farrell is an expensive way of obtaining a manager." Given a $5,000 salary increase, O'Farrell will be free to attend to his back-stopping next year.

WON A PENNANT
It is a comeback for McKechnie, who led Pittsburgh to a pennant and world's championship in 1925, but was released at the close of the 1926 season after dissenion had erupted out in the Pirate ranks and spoiled their prospects of repeating. Shotton steps into the major league managerial spotlight from a "A" minor league rank, just as Joe McCarthy, Donie Bush and Dan Howley have in recent seasons. He has played the "big time" outfield for Washington, Boston, Philadelphia and Cardinals, but managed the Syracuse Nationals last season, converting them from a second division outfit to a pennant contender and finishing in second place.

McInnis, who has been with six major league clubs at one time or another, was released unconditionally by the Phillies.

DEMPEY NOT ABLE TO HOLD STOCK AND BOX IN NEW YORK

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Jack Dempsey probably will be called upon by the New York State Athletic Commission to decide whether he intends to fight in the future or have others fight for him. Under the boxing laws of the state he cannot do both.

This declaration, made unofficially by the state boxing fathers, resulted from published reports that the former heavyweight champion had ordered $150,000 of Madison Square Garden stock through Promoter Tex Rickard. If the report is true, the board indicated yesterday, it would make an issue on the matter.

One of the questions asked a boxer applying for a license in New York is: "Has the applicant any financial interest in any corporation promoting boxing in this state or any other place?" An answer of "Yes," disqualifies the applicant. Dempsey, when he received a boxing license prior to the match with Sharkey last summer, answered "No" to that question.

B.C. RANKINGS ARE APPROVED

Provincial Lawn Tennis Association Will Not Alter Ratings—Dr. Boak Vice-President

VANCOUVER, Nov. 8.—Discussion of the recent tennis rankings of the British Columbia Lawn Tennis Association was the main item of business at the special meeting last evening, attended by Vice-President W. Carroll, of Victoria, and Dr. E. W. Boak, president of the Victoria Lawn Tennis Association. Dr. Boak was in the chair.

Rev. Carroll presented his resignation as he was leaving for England, and Dr. Boak was elected to the second vice-presidency during the balance of the term. Mr. Nicholson paid high tribute to the value of Mr. Carroll as an executive member.

After the rankings had been reviewed at some length, it was moved by Mr. P. J. Maw and seconded by Rev. Carroll, and carried unanimously: "That the report of the rankings of the B.C.L.T.A. be approved and adopted and incorporated in the minutes, and that the general tenor of the public be advised through the press of the fact that as the Pacific Northwest sectional tournament is not a tournament coming under the sanction of the British Columbia Lawn Tennis Association, the results of this tournament are not used in their rankings."

Court Awards $83,000 To Montreal Arena

MONTREAL, Nov. 8.—For breach of contract when the Canadiens Hockey Club, Inc., moved its playing quarters from the Mount Royal Arena to the Forum rink, damages of $83,000 were awarded to the Arena Amusement, Ltd., by judgment of Mr. Justice Walsh in the Superior Court today.

Short World Series Cost Owners Money

FANS WHO THINK ALL WORLD SERIES ARE FIXED, CONGRATULATE COLUCCI

(Former Pitcher, New York Giants)

In 1915 I was with the Phillies when the Red Sox beat us in a five-game world series. After it was over, Milton Stock, "Gavvy" Cravath, Grover Alexander, and some others of us were waiting in President Baker's office for some bonus money that was due us.

Baker came in and said: "You fellows want all the dough. By not winning that game yesterday, you did just the same as going down into my pocket for $100,000."

And it was so. The ball players, however, are not interested in long series. That day, Cravath remarked: "As long as it was in the books for us to lose this series, I'm glad we did it in a hurry, so I can get back to my dogs and go hunting."

The four-game World Series in which the Yankees swamped the Pirates this year did a great deal for baseball's reputation for integrity.

If the Yanks had lost one game, necessitating a Sunday battle in New York, the fans would have been raving the game. The four-game series costs the owners hundreds of thousands of dollars, and in no other business except baseball would it have been played out as it was—on merits, regardless of the gate.

STATUS ISSUE PUZZLES FANS

Question Again Raised by Playing of Suspended Man in League Soccer Game Last Saturday

CASE OF "PRO" BOXER IS CITED

Some of the football fans who attended the game last Saturday between the Saanich Thistles and Victoria West at Central Park, are wondering what effect the playing of Herb Cummings has on the amateur status of the other players. Cummings, it is understood, played in the Old Timers-Sons of Canada exhibition baseball game at the Royal Athletic Park some time ago, which resulted in all the participants being suspended from taking part in amateur sport.

At a meeting held last Friday night five of the players who completed were reinstated, but Cummings was not one of them, and fans were rather curious to know what the local branch of the B.C.A.A.U. would do under the circumstances. Cummings, who was reinstated Friday, played against Cummings.

As the result of several requests, The Colonist last night was in touch with Arthur Manson, president of the local association, on the question. He stated that the board was not aware that Cummings was a member of the Sons of Canada team, or of names of the other fifteen players who have not yet been reinstated.

NO RECOGNITION
He pointed out that the Dominion Football Association did not recognize the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada and, accordingly, the local branch did not have any power over soccer players.

Asked if it had any jurisdiction over players competing against suspended players in football, the president declared that the Union did not bother with soccer and that players mingling with men under suspension could take part in other games governed by the union without their amateur status being in jeopardy.

Questioned about Baptiste Thomas, an Indian professional heavyweight boxer, of Sanction, playing for Sidney, present champion of the Commercial Baseball League, the president declared that he knew nothing about this, but remarked that the laws in future would be more strictly enforced.

Baptiste Thomas boxed in several professional tournaments in Victoria, meeting Sam McPherson, former heavyweight champion of the British Navy, several times. He played second on the ice against the Chicago Black Hawks in the first game of the season, they will have the veteran combination that carried them into the 1927 championship series, in which they were vanquished by the Ottawa Senators.

BOSTON BRUINS WILL BE STRONG

Veterans and a Number of New Players Await Opening Game of N.H.L. Next Week

FRANK FREDRICKSON

BOSTON, Nov. 8.—With the opening of the National Hockey League season only six days distant, Boston Bruins look forward to their winter campaign with even brighter prospects than a year ago, when they were contenders for the world's championship. When the Bruins go on the ice against the Chicago Black Hawks in the first game of the season, they will have the veteran combination that carried them into the 1927 championship series, in which they were vanquished by the Ottawa Senators.

Sprague Cleghorn, veteran defence man, is again captain, and he is also acting as assistant to Manager Art Ross as coach. Eddie Duncan, Percy Cleghorn, Frank Fredrickson, Jim Herbert, Lionel Hitchman, Harry Oliver, and Hal Winkler, are other members of last season's aggregation who will be seen in their old positions.

For replacements the Bruins have an abundance of promising material, however, in Fred Gordon and Harry Connor, wing men; Nobby Clark, Dit Clapper and Norman Gaynor, defence men; and Lola Couture and Martin Lauder, centres.

COAST LEAGUE TO HAVE SPLIT SEASON AND PLAYING BONUS

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 8.—A $20,000 bonus as a playing incentive probably will be put into effect in the Pacific Coast League next year. Directors of the league meeting here yesterday adopted a split season of thirteen weeks each, and indications are that a substantial bonus will be hung up to go to the club winning the play-off.

The split season proposition was adopted yesterday by a six to two vote, the San Francisco and Oakland clubs voting against it.

MICKEY WALKER OUT ON $500 BAIL ON ASSAULT CHARGE

RED BANK, N. J., Nov. 8.—Mickey Walker, middleweight boxing champion of the world, was held in $500 bail today on a charge of assault and battery preferred by Walter Reade, middle-aged and wealthy owner of a chain of movie theatres on the North Jersey coast.

An altercation occurred in Reade's office, it was said, over the possibility of Walker's obtaining a lease on a projected $2,000,000 theatre and amusement pier in Ambury Park. Reade and Walker disagreed as to who struck the first blow. Reade's forehead was bruised.

Vic Foley to Battle Chicago Boy Tonight

BELLINGHAM, Nov. 8.—Vic Foley of Vancouver, B.C., will meet Kewpie Eckland, of Chicago, in the main event of the American Legion smoker here tomorrow night. In the 115-pound class, Nick Vondra, of Bellingham, is matched with Young McDonald, of Vancouver.

"The champion here all records that had been established in capturing national golf titles in the 450 years of the pastime's history," said Alex. Pirie, veteran president of the P.G.A. "Never before had any golfer won five consecutive national titles. James Braid, English pro, won the British national three times, which is the nearest approach to Hagen's achievement."

Letter to Editor

PENALTY KICKS

The Sports Editor, May I, in the interest of good soccer, be permitted to offer a little criticism on a question very much in the mind of all local football fans at the present time, namely, "The Taking of Penalty Kicks." The practice of not attempting to score from a penalty kick is becoming general as far as local teams are concerned. I have witnessed no less than four of these non-attempts to score during the past three weeks. The most recent one occurred on Saturday last between the Five C's and City teams, and is a glaring example of how laws of the game are ridiculed. His opinion of the referee's decision should have nothing to do with the matter. His duty was to attempt to score for the benefit of the club he represented, to uphold the laws of the game, and to set an example to other players, especially the many junior players who this season form part of his and other teams.

I venture to say that it was not the wish of his teammates that he made such a fiasco of the kick, neither was it a pleasing sight to supporters who year in and year out, are doing their utmost to improve the game, to witness a player who has failed to do his duty by his team, being chased over the field by players of the opposing team for the purpose of shaking his hand and calling him a good sport.

Is it not possible for the officials of the league to take this matter up, or why cannot the clubs themselves handle the question? It is to their material benefit to have the laws of the game carried out properly. If they wish to maintain the spirit of unity, without which there cannot be success. And what of the referees, either as a body or as individuals? How long are they going to lay down to this ridicule of their decisions? It seems to me that if they had a little more of the spirit of John Lewis, of Blackburn, England, they would find a solution to this vexed question.

No player has the right to enforce his opinion of a breach of the rules. The referee's viewpoint should and must be upheld, otherwise the game will deteriorate and die for lack of support. Mr. Player, do your duty, and Mr. Supporter, refrain from calling men good sports who fail to do their duty to their team.

W. H. HADLEY.

26TH WORLD CHESS GAME DRAWN AFTER ONE HOUR'S PLAY

BUENOS AIRES, Nov. 8.—The twenty-sixth game for the world's championship between Jose R. Capablanca, of Cuba, and Alexander Alekhine, of Russia, was declared a draw tonight after only twenty-two moves. The game, which was started tonight, lasted a little more than an hour. While twenty games have been drawn since the opening of the tournament only six games were decisive. Alekhine winning four and the Cuban champion two. Six victories are necessary to clinch the title. The twenty-seventh game will be played Wednesday.

Taylor Needs to Mount One More Step for Crown

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 8.—Bud Taylor, Terre Haute, Ind., mounted another step toward the featherweight throne to which he aspires, by taking a ten-round decision here tonight over Johnny Farr, of Oakland.

The fight was a nip and tuck affair, with Taylor stepping out in the last two rounds to take the lead and decision.

Taylor, already recognized in more than a score of states as the ban-tamweight titleholder, is matched to meet Tony Casoneri, of Boston, in New York next month in a bout billed as for the 126-pound crown.

Walter Sheasby Is Appointed J.B.A.A. Physical Director

Walter Sheasby, boxing instructor of the 16th Canadian Scottish Regiment, was appointed physical director of the J.B.A.A. at a meeting held in the clubhouse, Belleville Street, last night.

The newly appointed director will train the Rugby team and try to bring the Bays back to their old standard in city athletics. Sheasby put the successful crews in the N.P.O.A. regatta through their training, previous to their splendid showing at Harrison Hot Springs last summer.

Shea Scores Kayo

CHICAGO, Nov. 8.—Eddie Shea, Chicago's featherweight championship contender, knocked out Steve MacLean, of Minneapolis, in the second round of a scheduled ten-round bout last night.

Red Uhlman, California, southpaw middleweight, won the judges' decision over Walcott Langford, of Chicago, in eight rounds.

THE OVER SWING WITH THE DRIVER A FAULT—NOT A VIRTUE

THE CLUB SHOULD GO NO FURTHER BACK THAN THIS

11-6

Over swinging is a serious fault with the majority of beginners and duffers. Only the very expert can afford to take chances on the long, around the back finish. They let out at the ball and put all that they have into the hit or sweep. Every essential of the swing must be perfect to enable one to do this.

We find that even among the best players—the leading amateurs and pros—that over swinging is not the best and does not always produce the most satisfactory results.

The shorter, more compact swing brings more success. The beginner must keep this in mind even though he feels that he is going to sacrifice some distance. In the end a compact well-timed swing will pay greater dividends.

Broken Neck No Bar to Boston Football Star

BOSTON, Nov. 8.—A broken neck is no handicap to Harry Herbert, veteran quarterback on the Boston University football team, according to the Associated Press. Suffering the injury in 1922 in a Syracuse-Colgate game, Herbert spent months in a hospital before he recovered.

Transferring from Syracuse to Boston, he went back to the gridiron and now has played almost as many years as Harry Wilson, of Penn State and the Army.

"Senora Uzcudun?" they asked. "Herself," replied the woman. "We are two great admirers of your son Paulino. We wish to congratulate you for being the mother of the best pugilist ever born in Spain."

TUNNEY SICK OF PICTURES

Reviews Films of Chicago Fight Six Times—Says They Furnish Third Battle "Ballyhoo"

SILLY EXPRESSION TOO MUCH FOR HIM

NEW YORK, Nov. 8.—Gene Tunney is "so sick of seeing his silly expression" as he reclined on the canvas in the seventh round of his last fight with Jack Dempsey that the heavyweight champion has no further desire to see the motion picture of the battle.

"I've seen the movies six times already," he said, "but I can't go again. There's another fight coming, you know, and I'm afraid that woosy expression of mine will leave a disastrous impression on me. I want to forget it."

The champion, ruddy and in good humor, was talking informally to a gathering of business men and fight fans at the Princeton Club. It was an affair given jointly in his honor, as well as that of Tommy Loughran, light-heavyweight title claimant, by Derby Crandall, Jr.

Except for that seventh round, however, the fight movies aren't so convincing to Tunney. He has had some experience before the screen himself, taking a star part some time ago in a screen drama which he now admits he would "pay $500,000 to get out of the market."

SPOKANE, Nov. 8.—"Young" Stirling, of Macon, Ga., tonight slammed Angus Snyder, of Winnipeg, for a decision in six rounds in the main event of a card at Dishman, Wash., and thereby advanced his claim to the heavyweight championship of Canada. Stirling weighed 178, and Snyder 184.

PORT ALBERNI BUILDING UP

SIGNS OF PROSPERITY AP-PEAR IN WEST COAST
CITY

Fishing and Lumbering Industries Prosperous—General Activity in Business Circles

PORT ALBERNI, Nov. 8.—It would appear from the extent of building operations in Port Alberni that this city is sharing largely in the general prosperity of this Western country. Not only are the fishermen prosperous, but the lumber industry is enjoying a period of good times. Scarcely a week passes but there is one and very often two freighters in the harbor loading in midstream or loading at the Alberni Pacific Lumber Company's dock. Around forty ships have loaded lumber and timber at this port since the first of the year, and well over fifty million feet of lumber have gone into the foreign markets either through the Panama Canal or direct to the Orient. The Kai-sho Maru is at present loading two and one-half million feet for Japan. Picket & Gustavsson, logging contractors, have supplied over seven million feet of logs to the A. P. Lumber Company to date this year, and their camp is going full blast across the Sonmass River. There are several other contractors also operating for the A. P. L. and the company's shingle mill is working night and day. Operations this year with this big company have been more successful and more profitable perhaps than ever in its history.

New businesses are starting in new buildings in this city. Mr. W. H. Deshaw has completed construction of a new building at the corner of Third Avenue and Argyle Street. The ground floor is occupied by McFie & McKay, Limited, a new firm in town. The second story is divided into housekeeping suites. A new automobile salesroom has opened in the Watson Block. A new show window has been opened in Waterhouse & Greene's department store on Argyle Street. The Overwaitea, Limited, have constructed a new one-story building on First Avenue, which will open for business in a few days. This is the first venture in the "cash and carry" business in this town. There is unprecedented activity in the building of new houses in every section of the town, and Mr. Ian G. Davidson has made arrangements for the construction of Third Avenue of an apartment block. During the last few months it has been practically impossible to rent a house in this town, and it is becoming much more profitable to buy a lot and build. Lots, though increasing in value, are still available at a reasonable figure at private sale as well as from the city.

Everyone was first given a delightful tea and then plentifully supplied with crackers and other fireworks, proceeded to the school field, where an enormous bonfire was lighted and an excellent effigy of Guy Fawkes properly and duly burned. After an hour and a half of great fun, the boys gave three cheers for Headmaster and Mrs. Benson, and having been still further reinforced with cake, made for home. Amongst those present was Mr. John Hodges, an old boy, accompanied by a friend, Mr. Redpath, from Victoria.

NONAGENARIAN PIONEER DEAD

CAPTAIN JACK CHIVERS IS BURIED AT SALT SPRING
AFTER SUDDEN DEATH

Came to Coast in Early Sixties—
Had Adventurous Life as Trader
in the North

SALT SPRING, Nov. 8.—The late Mr. John Chivers, aged 98, who passed away during Thursday night, and was found dead in his cabin on Narrow Island on Friday morning by his nephew, Mr. John Shaw, of Retreat Cove, was buried at the Anglican Church Cemetery, Salt Spring Island, on Saturday, the funeral service having first been held at St. Mark's Church, Rev. J. W. Finlon officiating. Mr. Chivers was a bachelor. The chief mourners were Mr. J. Shaw, nephew, of Retreat Cove, and his niece, Mrs. Arthur Walter, of Keating.

"Captain" Jack Chivers was one of the real pioneers of the West. A native of Glasgow, he arrived on the Coast in 1862 by the same ship as Dr. Jackson, who was Victoria's medical health officer at the time of the smallpox outbreak here. For many years he was in the packing and trading business and made a substantial stake at the time of the Cariboo mining excitement by packing on the Cariboo Road, and he was one of the oldest traders in Alaska. One of his earliest adventures on this coast was when the Hudson's Bay Company's steamship Labouchere was seized by Indians while he was on board, a dispute having arisen over trading for sea-otter skins.

Among Captain Chivers' old friends were Captain William Irving, father of Captain John Irving, one of the best-known marine men of the coast, and Captain Cotford, a native son and now living in Victoria at 1028 Mason Street, who arrived in 1856.

A two minutes' silence was observed, followed by the placing of wreaths. The ceremony was concluded by the sounding of the Last Post by Able Seaman Putnam, and the singing of the National Anthem.

At The Playhouses

COLINEUM Bebe Daniels. Paratheatre mount star, is just about ready to appropriate the title of "filmdom's champion all-round athlete." Furthermore she has a genuine claim on it. The whole business started some time ago when the dashing comedienne made "The Palm Beach Girl" and took the part of a swimmer and the pilot of a motor boat. She next made "The Campfire Girl," in which she gave Charles Paddock a close run for honors as a sprinter. Now she is in another picture of college sports, "Swim, Girl, Swim," which is now showing at the Coliseum Theatre. Here she is shown as an expert swimmer, and her training came from Gertrude Ederle, first woman to swim the English Channel, who has an important role in support of the star.

COLUMBIA Monte Blue, star of THEATRE "The Black Diamond Express," the Warner Bros. production now at the Coliseum Theatre, was born in Indianapolis, Ind., in 1890, and educated at Purdue University. After a life of adventuring, he returned to the cowboy, sailor, soldier, carpenter and athlete, he became an extra for D. W. Griffith, and began the screen career which has brought him success and fame. Among his best known pictures are "The Limited Mail," "Hogan's Alley," "The Man Upstairs," "Wolf's Clothing" and "The Brute."

PLAYHOUSE The story of "The Wife Who Wasn't Wanted," now showing at the Playhouse Theatre, deals with a happy wife and mother whose son is arrested for speeding. His father, a district attorney, refuses to use his office to save the boy; having refused to do the same service for another man's son. The mother, in desperation, appeals to her old time sweetheart, who is now her husband's opponent for office. His schemes deceive her, and through misunderstanding and trouble, she loses her husband's love and becomes "The Wife Who Wasn't Wanted." The story of "What Happened to Father," also showing at the Playhouse Theatre, is uproariously funny and tremendously human.

CAPITOL A super-city, in which THEATRE The Woolworth building would be dwarfed in which there is more life under ground than above, in which modern machinery, modern economic systems would be considered primitive—this is "Metropolis," now showing at the Capitol Theatre. To those who saw the stage play "R. U. R." some years ago, this theme will not be totally unfamiliar. For "Metropolis" touches on that day when men will make mechanical men to do their slaving. The star specialties for today include Chrissie and Daley, the English Pantomime Artists de Luxe, in a novelty presentation, Lorenzo, "The Whistling Wop," and Dud Nelson, the famous radio soloist, in song selections. The concert orchestra will also be featured in a tenebrous musical synopsis for the picture attractions.

DOMINION "America is the land of youth," declares THEATRE Emil Jannings, theatrical idol of Europe, whose first American-made "Paramount," "The Way of All Flesh," will be seen at the Dominion Theatre today. "Your flapper is a stereotyped creation. All appear to have been cast in the same mold or cut from the same pattern. But your business girls are truly delightful. They have the beauty and the smartness to dress of any daughter of the idle rich and coupled with that they have a mental background that I find refreshing. They are cool, efficient, well-mannered. And no matter what their actual years, they are invariably young. I have learned through observation that this also holds true of the men," Jannings continues. "Your American business man is a young man, no matter if he has grey hair and walks with a cane."

Allan Pollock in "Bill of Divorcement" At Royal on Friday

Who was the philosopher that said "in moments of the greatest calm we say the most commonplace things." Here is a striking illustration in the case of Allan Pollock, the distinguished star, who the conclusion of a long engagement as leading man with Charles Frohman decided to take a trip to San Francisco to see his elder brother, from whom he had been parted for nearly thirty years. On meeting they gripped hands both bereft of words by the emotion of the occasion. The silence was broken by the elder brother with the following unexpected speech: "Is that suit you have on ready-made, old boy?" "No," said Allan. "Well, I'm sorry," said the other, "but it's a damned bad fit." Allan Pollock is playing in "A Bill of Divorcement" at the Royal Theatre Friday and Saturday of this week.

Kiwani's Minstrels Will Make Appearance on November 21, 22, 23

There are many memories attached to the Great War that will linger long after the present generation has forgotten the deeds of heroism, the grand and noble acts of self-sacrifice, the voluntary giving up of life itself, these will live as long as human life survives on this sphere. But there is one phase of the late world conflict whose memory will not suffer through the passing of time. The moving grace of humor contributed in no small degree to the successful consummation of the Allied objectives. The comical characters, the amusing episodes that happened even amid the grim and forbidding environment of the shell-scarred battlefield, all helped to lighten the men in the trenches and those at home at times when it seemed that the Allies were per-

Gunsmen Caught

LONDON, Ont., Nov. 8.—After a gunfight with London police, in which one was wounded in the wrist, two men were arrested in Thorndale just before noon today, charged with the holding up of the London and Port Stanley Railway Stations at London and St. Thomas last night. The police had followed the trail of the robbers all night and made an effort to arrest the two men at a poolroom. One surrendered and the other took to flight. He ran to the second concession of Missouri and forced Robert Wheaton, a farmer, at the point of a gun, to drive him on from that point.

Overtaken by the pursuing police, the Wheaton car was ditched and the unwilling driver suffered a bad gash in the forehead. The bandit again took to his heels, but a bullet through the wrist from the gun of Detective Tom Bolton stopped him.

WHO WAS SHE?

The astounding, baffling mystery of a pretty girl who, on her return to consciousness after a serious accident, had to face Motherhood without the slightest recollection of her past life!

A DREADFUL CRASH... a blinding flash... agonizing pain... abysmal chaos... darkness... eternal darkness!

And in the hospital—weeks later—a little mystery-maiden slowly and uncertainly shambled back from the stygian void of unconsciousness to face a more dreadful calamity. Anxiously the hospital authorities awaited her answer to their oft repeated question: "Who is she?"—and to their utter amazement she told them she didn't know!

A careful examination revealed the astounding fact that her memory extended only as far back as the accident. Previous to that everything was a blank; association with the persons and things of her past life absolutely did not exist. And then the authorities began asking: "WHO WAS SHE?" But her sensational story, published with her photograph in the newspapers, failed to bring word from relatives or friends.

Nameless and Friendless!

But the worst was yet to come. The same Fate that had dealt her such an unkind blow decreed that again she must sojourn into the valley of the shadows—this time to answer the insistent call of Mr. Stork! Poor little nameless creature! And having learned the ghastly truth, she turned her pretty face to the wall and prayed that both their lives be taken. "I just cannot go through with this second ordeal," she sobbed, "uncertain even of my claim to respectability!" And to complicate her unhappy plight, the handsome young Internist at the hospital offered her his name—in marriage! "Who are my parents?" she cried in anguish; "Oh, why don't they come for me?"

What could they do about it? What was the secret of this girl's past? Was she married? Who was the child's father? What would the future hold for them? Nobody knew! Then, almost by imperceptible degrees, there formulated in her subconscious mind a nebulous something suggestive of lofty mountain peaks and the sweet aroma of pines. Were the "dear, dead days beyond recall" beginning to formulate themselves in her mind? Was memory....

Guerillas Kill Aviators

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Nov. 8.—A report that Second Lieut. W. E. Thomas and Sergeant Frank Dowell, American marine aviators, who have been missing for more than a month, ever since they crashed in their plane while on patrol duty, were killed by followers of the former Liberal general Sandino after a fight at a cave entrance, was received here today from Nicaragua. The report is believed here to be authentic.

The report reveals that the American flyers were killed only after putting up a desperate resistance against thirty or forty guerillas who trapped them in a cave after one of the American flyers had been wounded by a machete in the hands of two men whom they met in the jungle undergrowth, after abandoning their plane.

World-Famous Stories

THE KING OF THE BLACK ISLES
FROM THE ARABIAN NIGHTS

(One of the most famous collections of tales in literature is that known familiarly as the "Arabian Nights," or more formally as the "Thousand and One Nights," being so called because the stories were told throughout that number of nights. The fairy-tale quality of these stories is the especial delight of children, but they are also highly interesting to adults, as was clearly evidenced by the motion picture, "The Thief of Bagdad.")

The Sultan was puzzled by some curious fish that had been brought to him; of four colors they were, and they could not be cooked. So he had the fishermen direct him and his court to the lake where they had been caught, and he was surprised to learn that it was within three hours of his palace, although no one seemed to have heard of it before.

The night the Sultan set out alone to seek the cause of this mystery, taking with him his seminary. He went over the hills easily, found the descent less difficult, and on the plain, walked on till the sun rose, when he saw before him, far off, a great building. Nearing it, he saw that it was a magnificent palace, or castle, of fine black polished marble, and covered with fine steel, smooth as a looking-glass.

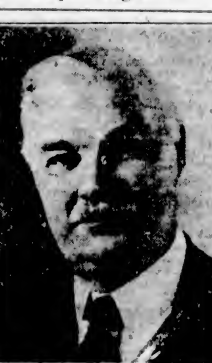

The Sultan knocked at the gate, but received no answer. He knocked again, and called aloud, but still no one answered him. Finally he entered, and just inside called again, but still no answer. He passed through the court into the great hall hung with silk tapestry and filled with rich things. On three sides the castle was surrounded by a garden. The Sultan walked from apartment to apartment, and saw many fine things. Getting tired, he sat down to rest, and was surprised to hear cries of misery. Investigating, the Sultan came to another great hall.

There was a handsome young man, richly dressed, seated on a throne. He was the picture of melancholy. The youth excused himself for not standing to receive the Sultan's salute. The Sultan asked him the meaning of the pond and the strange fish of four colors, and the empty castle. Suddenly the young man lifted up his gown and showed the Sultan that he was a man from head to waist, and that the other half of his body was black marble. Then he told his story.

"When I succeeded my father as king of this country, known as the kingdom of the Black Isles, from the four neighboring mountains, which were friendly islands, I soon married my cousin. For five years we were very happy. Then I had cause to suspect her of infidelity. I learned that she had been drugging me to lull my suspicions. Once I followed her, and saw her enter a little wood, where she met a man. Their conversation taught me that my wife, the queen, was a sorceress. As they passed, I struck the man with my scimitar, fatally wounding him, although she kept him alive with a magic spell. Still, he never revived, although he breathed.

"The queen went into mourning, but told me it was for relatives of whose death she had just learned.

Cuban in Canada on Trade Mission

DR. JOSE MACHADO
Legal adviser to the American Chamber of Commerce at Havana, Cuba, who is in Canada studying ways and means of the advantages of a trade treaty.

He asked to be directed to the Palace of Tears, so that he might find the man who hung between living and dying by virtue of the false queen's enchantments. Going there, the sultan found the wretch and quickly killed him, taking his place on the couch. When the sorceress arrived, she begged, as usual, for the man to speak one word to her.

The sultan, to the woman's astonishment, spoke: "Unhappy woman," said he, "why should you expect an answer? The cries and groans of your husband hinder me from sleeping night and day. I should have been cured long ago, had you been merciful. Restore your husband if you would have me well."

So the sorceress, believing him, went and released the handsome youth from the spell, making him whole again, and he controlled himself to await the success of the sultan's plan which had been so well begun.

"Dearest, I have done what you ordered," said the sorceress, to the man she supposed was on the couch. "That is only a part of the cure," said the sultan, always using the language of India, which the woman's lover spoke. "You must now restore your husband's kingdom, for the thought of those poor fish delays my cure. Go quickly—restore all things as they were, and when you return you shall help me rise."

The enchantress was filled with joy at the prospect. She obeyed when she came to the brink of the pond, she took a little water in her hands, sprinkling it, she pronounced some words over the fish and the pond, and the city was immediately restored. The houses and shops were immediately filled with their inhabitants, who found all things as they were before the enchantment.

The sultan's numerous retinue, who had encamped, as it happened, on the largest square, were astonished to find themselves suddenly in the middle of a large, beautiful, well-peopled city.

The sorceress returned to her supposed lover. "My dear," she said, "all has been done as you ordered. Pray rise, and give me your hand."

"Come near," said the sultan. She did so. "Nearer," he said. She obeyed. Then he rose up and seized her, and with a blow of his scimitar cut her into two so that half fell one way and half the other. Then the sultan went out and joined the young King of the Black Isles.

"You may dwell peacefully in your capital," said the sultan, "or you may come to mine, which is only three hours' distant."

"Powerful monarch," said the young man, "I am indebted to you. But you are farther away than you think—the enchantment is now broken, and it is at least a year's journey from here. No doubt you came in three hours, but that was because of the spell that was over these regions. But you are my deliverer, and I shall accompany you to your kingdom."

The sultan was surprised to learn how far away he was. But it did not matter, for he had been well repaid for the journey. He decided to adopt the young king for his son, for he had no heir. Returning to the great land of the sultan, all the affairs of the kingdom were found to be in order, and they were well received by the ministers and the populace.

WEALTH OF CITY IN SQUARE BOYS

Mr. Geo. L. Goodwin, Y.M.C.A. Official, Tells Kiwanians Here of Worth of a Boy

"The wealth of a city or a community is not in its square blocks or square buildings, but in its square boys. It is far better and cheaper to train boys to do right than to restrain them from doing wrong. It is cheaper to prevent crime than to cure the criminal. I know your motto is 'We Build,' and I say it is better to 'build boys than mend men.'" Mr. Geo. L. Goodwin, of the Y.M.C.A., told members of the Victoria Kiwanis Club at their weekly luncheon yesterday in the Chamber of Commerce auditorium.

Mr. Goodwin discussed the topic, "The Worth of a Boy," and contended that it was the task of public-spirited citizens to take a greater interest in the development of the boyhood of the Province. He said that it was impossible to estimate or calculate the worth of a boy in dollars and cents.

The speaker recalled that a bright boy was once asked, "Sonny, what are you good for?" and the little fellow answered, "Master. I'm the stuff they make men of." The boys growing up in our homes and schools are the very stuff that men are made of.

"In facing problems of the world, is there any question that is more fundamental and should challenge our attention more than the problem of wasted energy, wasted blood, as far as boyhood is concerned?" He recalled that the cost of educating each boy totaled many thousands of dollars, and a community lost this investment when the young men left for other localities. He argued that efforts should be made to hold the younger generation at home.

Mr. Goodwin compared the boy with an automobile, which delights with its beauty, speed and strength. He pointed out that seventy-eight per cent of the boy's energy is dissipated in physical effort. This is the reason why the Y.M.C.A. has concentrated great efforts towards the direction of the boy in athletic activity.

"The Y.M.C.A. is not only doing this work itself, but it is a pioneering agency in getting other organizations to also take care and assist in directing the physical, educational, social and religious development of the boy. Mr. Goodwin asserted.

"HITTING ON ALL FOUR"

The speaker inquired if the boy was "hitting on all four cylinders," adding that it was essential for the boy to have the four sides of his life properly developed to reach the state of real manhood. It was important for boys to "hit on all four," he said, asking if boys in British Columbia were all given that chance.

Mr. Goodwin alluded to the practice of boys in lifting gates, and in digging in banditry and petty thieving on Halloween, and suggested that such things could be counteracted if the boys were given something constructive to do on that night each year. He said the Victoria Y.M.C.A. would likely next year present a strong programme of entertainment on Halloween for boys, which would eradicate much of the mischief in the past.

"It isn't any good to fill your city with Nelson roofs are beautifying. Nelson roofs are permanent. Nelson roofs are economizing. Phone: E. E. Health, 874 or 4185.

with policemen, for there will be more rates hung on chicken-coops than ever if you tell boys 'You cannot do this,' he said.

In concluding, Mr. Goodwin declared that a fence around the top of the cliff is better than an ambulance waiting below, to aid those who fall over.

Judge Awards Children To Custody of Mother

VANCOUVER, Nov. 8.—Custody of three children, a girl of thirteen and two boys, aged eleven and eight, remains with their mother, Edith Spada, Vancouver, as a result of Mr. Justice Morrison's decision in Supreme Court today when dismissing an application by the father, Mike Spada, railway section foreman, of Gladwin, B.C., for a writ of habeas corpus to recover possession of the children.

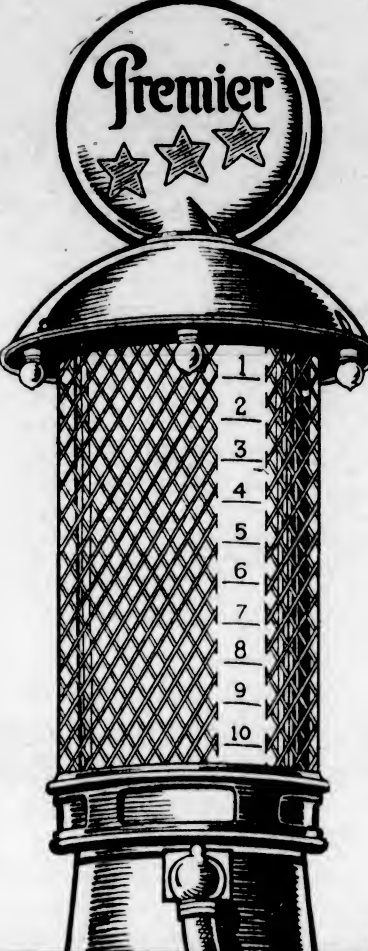

"The whole trouble is that he is jealous of his wife having men about the house," remarked the judge. "He thought they were having lots of fun at his own expense. When we think of these remote railway towns it is a wonder they don't go crazy if they can't have friends around."

Health and Diet Advice

By DR. FRANK MCCOY

MEASLES

Until the seventeenth century physicians believed that measles was a mild form of smallpox, and although the germ of the disease has never been discovered, it is quite certain that measles is produced by a definite form of toxemia which comes to a crisis period mostly during the summer, when it seems to occur in its most vicious form. The first symptoms are usually those of a catarrhal nature, with sneezing and running at the nose, redness of the eyes and lids, and, finally, a slight cough. There is not much fever for the first few days, but usually at about the fourth day the fever suddenly rises, reaching around 104 degrees. This extreme fever makes the rash break out on the skin, and as soon as the body is entirely covered with a rash the fever begins to subside. The rash first appears on the forehead and behind the ears, but spreads rapidly over the entire body. As soon as there is a good eruption of poisons, the red rash disappears and becomes more pink.

At the start of this disease the patient should be given warm sponge baths at least every two hours during the day, and as soon as the fever subsides and the rash begins to disappear, the skin at my chemist's treated by applications of milk o'f magies applied after the sponge bath. This counteracts the acids and irritants which are being thrown out through the skin, and is very soothing to the patient. After the itching has disappeared, the frequent skin bathing may be discontinued and only used once or twice daily, after which the skin should be rubbed with almond oil.

In measles, as with every other fever or eruptive disease, no regular food of any kind should be given to the patient. A plain water fast may be used, but the rash will appear more quickly if the juice of several oranges is taken daily. The orange juice seems to have a stimulating effect in producing a quicker elimination through the skin, and consequently, the fever goes down more rapidly.

Food should not be given to the patient until all signs of the fever have disappeared for at least twenty-four hours. The first meals should consist wholly of non-starchy vegetables, gradually adding eggs, meat (preferably chicken), and other good proteins, after a few days of the non-starchy diet.

When patients are convalescing from measles there is very little appetite, so if the patient is urged to eat more food than is desired, the results will be even worse than would be ordinarily produced by over-eating at other times. If the intake of food is kept to the minimum for a few weeks there will be less chance of developing chronic catarrhal disorders that so often follow measles. Tuberculosis comes on as a common aftermath of measles, but will always be avoided if the patient is kept to a strict diet and gradually replaces his strength through systematic exercises.

New Local Song

Listeners will be interested to know that today will be sung over the radio a new song, called "Spring Song," the words of which are by Mrs. J. L. Bell, the music composed and arranged by Mrs. Ruby Moore, a well-known musician of this city. It will be sung by Miss Dorothy Hartree. Copies may be obtained at the music shops. This song was accepted by the publishing firm of Paxton, England.

Premier Rhodes III

OTTAWA, Nov. 8.—The Dominion Provincial Conference expressed its sorrow yesterday in respect to the illness of Premier E. N. Rhodes of Nova Scotia. The Maritime Premier, who was taken ill on Saturday morning, was compelled to go to Montreal yesterday to meet his physician. It is very doubtful if Premier Rhodes will be sufficiently recovered to enable his return to the capital before the conference closes on Wednesday evening or Thursday morning.

BABY CROSS ALL THE TIME

Eczema on Face and Body. Cuticura Heals.

"My baby's face and body were covered with eczema. It broke out in blisters and sore eruptions, and he could not sleep on account of the irritation. I had to keep mittens on his hands to keep him from scratching. He was cross all the time, and his clothing aggravated the breaking out."

"I used other remedies but they did not help him. I began using Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in a few days I could see a change, and in about a month he was healed."

(Signed) Mrs. Katie Davidson, Flat 14th, Ala.

SHAKESPEARE PLAYS COMING

MR. ARCHIBALD FLOWER EX-PLAINS PROJECT TO WOMEN'S CANADIAN CLUB

Stratford Players to Tour Canada Next Season—New Memorial Theatre Already Guaranteed

"We who speak the language of Shakespeare do not always realize as much as we should the advantage of seeing Shakespeare's plays acted," said Mr. Archibald Flower, chairman of the Board of Governors of the Shakespeare Memorial Theatre, in the course of an address which he made before a big Women's Canadian Club audience yesterday afternoon at the Empress Hotel. Mr. Flower's address was in the nature of a quiet appeal for support of the project of bringing the Stratford Players to this country next season. Born at Stratford-on-Avon, and a life-long Shakespeare student and enthusiast, he was, he said, less anxious to enlist big gifts of money on behalf of the Memorial Theatre which is to replace that destroyed two or three years ago by fire, than to get evidence on this side of the Atlantic that those promoting the Stratford Players' tour were doing something worth while.

"Our object is to build up Shakespearean audiences on both sides of the Atlantic," he maintained. Judging by the size of the Women's Canadian Club audience in Victoria, the project's success was guaranteed so far as this city, at least, was concerned, he noted. Mr. Flower touched on many interesting things concerning Shakespeare and the little town of Stratford, where he was born and received his early schooling, and to which he returned from London after a busy life as dramatist and actor. It was from Warwickshire that Shakespeare had drawn his chief inspiration, and for this reason Mr. Flower would wish all Canadians to see this part of England in the Spring, the most beautiful season. Briefly the speaker pictured some of the boyhood influences which might have turned Shakespeare's mind to playwriting. Play censorship had even at that time been exercised. Shakespeare's father, in his capacity of bailiff of Stratford, having to fill the role of censor. It was not improbable that he had taken his son William to see some of these itinerant players, and that from these entertainments the lad had been inspired to go to London, where his career as actor and playwright began.

A SMALL CITY

Stratford, for Shakespeare's sake, honored by all nations and all peoples, numbers less than 10,000 inhabitants today, but every year on the anniversary of "the bard of Avon's" birth the flags of sixty-four nations are unfurled there in his honor.

"In Shakespeare we have one subject on which the whole world is agreed, for Shakespeare was the master singer of the English tongue. We hold the magic key of world peace; for Shakespeare knows no warrior, class, creed or color," said the speaker, who proceeded to tell something about the Shakespeare festival idea which originated forty-eight years ago. Shakespeare needed no marble monument; his works were his best memorial. The festival, for a short time playing to empty benches, had gained and gained in popularity, until last year the season had been extended to fifteen weeks, pleasing to audiences made up of people from all over the world. Eight different plays could be seen in a single week, and for this reason and the pleasure of the Shakespeare associations of Stratford, all Canadians who could should visit there.

Mr. Flower referred to the wonderful evidence of widespread and universal love of Shakespeare which had come to the people of Stratford following the destruction of the Memorial Theatre two or three years ago. Preparations for the annual festival were under way at the time, but the loss was not allowed to interfere with these, for a movie house was taken and hurriedly remodelled, and five weeks from the date of the fire the Festival Players opened for their annual engagement. The destruction of the Memorial Theatre had drawn letters of sympathy, nearly always accompanied by cheques, from such remote places as Turkey, Spain and Japan.

"We are hoping that the world will wake up and value Shakespeare; not necessarily through the governments of the various countries, but through the individuals who feel that Shakespeare is worth while, and help little Stratford, realizing that it has done its bit for forty-eight years," urged Mr. Flower, asking for a wider audience than could be accommodated in the little town of Stratford.

THEATRE GUARANTEED

The new Memorial Theatre was already guaranteed; what they now sought was an endowment fund that would enable the carrying of the Shakespeare message out into the world. The Stratford Players, which it was intended to bring to Canada next season, was an all-star company with no "also rans" in its personnel.

In the opening part of his talk, Mr. Flower spoke of his pleasure in being back in Victoria, which he had last visited about fourteen years ago. On that occasion they had arrived here after a two months' tour of the States; now they reached it after an interesting trip across

Assistant Agricultural Agent at Winnipeg

MR. JAMES DUFF GUILD

Who has been appointed assistant to the agricultural agent of the Canadian National Railway, for the Western region, with headquarters at Winnipeg. He is a native of Manitoba, and a graduate of Manitoba Agricultural College. Mr. Guild, who has been supervisor of illustration farms, at Brandon, since Mr. T. P. Devlin, who has become superintendent of the railway's colonization work at Saskatoon.

Canada through "thriving busy towns and a wonderful land of vast open spaces and illimitable opportunities." It was to be regretted that the present had no Shakespeare to do justice to such a country, and here in Victoria he realized that no one less than a Shakespeare could adequately express its beauty.

"I have travelled all over the world, in the Far East, Ceylon, India, California—but I have never seen anything more beautiful than this," said Mr. Flower, also recalling the enjoyable visit to the Provincial Library and Archives earlier in the day with his host, the Lieutenant-Governor.

Mrs. Flower was presented by the president, Mrs. Peter MacNaughton, with a corsage bouquet, and Mrs. Spottford expressed the thanks of the club to Mr. Flower at the close of his much-applauded address. The hostess of the afternoon was Miss Irene Bick, violinist, who played a melody by Gluck and a "Snake Dance." Miss Eileen Dumbarton accompanied at the piano.

FROLIC TO BE HELD TONIGHT

Automotive Trades Staging Event in Aid of Mill Bay Sanatorium—Doors Open at 8 o'clock

The Automotive Trades first annual charity frolic will be held at the Crystal Garden tonight from 8 to 11 o'clock. The net proceeds from the event will be devoted to the Mill Bay Sanatorium for Crippled Children.

According to the committee in charge an elaborate and unique programme has been arranged for the affair, one that promises to interest something about the Shakespeare festival idea which originated forty-eight years ago. Shakespeare needed no marble monument; his works were his best memorial. The festival, for a short time playing to empty benches, had gained and gained in popularity, until last year the season had been extended to fifteen weeks, pleasing to audiences made up of people from all over the world. Eight different plays could be seen in a single week, and for this reason and the pleasure of the Shakespeare associations of Stratford, all Canadians who could should visit there.

Nightingales

Are Migrating To New Zealand

QUEBEC, Nov. 8.—An interesting passenger by the Canadian Pacific steamship Montrose which docked here this morning, was Angus Wilson, well-known British newspaper man and author, who brought with him two pairs of nightingales, which he is taking via the C.P.R. all red route to New Zealand for acclimation in that Dominion. The Canadian Pacific Railway and the Union Steamship Company are co-operating by giving the birds free transit in specially warmed compartments. They will sail on the Ss. Aorangi from Vancouver this month and on the arrival of the ship at Auckland, N.Z., about December 5, the birds will be released at the little barrier. The nightingales are the gift of Gilbert Garnett, one of the most brilliant of the younger literary school in England, and before sailing on the Montrose, a farewell reception was held to which H. G. Wells, Walter De La Mare, Cabot Sitwell and other poets and writers were invited. Mr. Wilson stated that the birds had come through the first lap of their long journey in good shape. He is himself following in the footsteps of his relative, the late Edward Wilson, founder of the Melbourne Argus, who was responsible for the introduction of several Australian birds to England.
